SPECIAL MEETING AFTER TRIAL

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, April 13.

It is learned that at a meeting of the Cabinet last night, it was decided that Mr. Baldwin should, in the absence of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, call a meeting of the Cabinet immediately after the Moscow trial to consider the position, if it is thought necessary.—Reuter.

STATE AID FOR JOBLESS

NEW GOVERNMENT POLICY

ASSUMING FULL RESPONSIBILITY

London, Apr. 11.

The Minister of Health, Sir Hilton Young, announced in the House of Commons that before the end of this session, the Government would introduce a bill dealing on a national basis with the problem of assistance for those who were in need of assistance, including those who had been insured against unemployment, but who were no longer so insured.

Stating that he could not reveal the contents of the Bill, he indicated its broad outlines.

The essence of the problem was that they had to provide for large numbers seeking work but unable to find it and who were faced with the deteriorating effects of idleness.

As far as possible, it would be the primary purpose of the Bill to make a close connection between the work of giving help and the work of promoting the physical and mental welfare of the unemployed by training, occupation and recreation.

The Bill would establish a measure of national control. It would redistribute the duties and the functions of the local authorities and the central Government in relation to assistance from public funds, whether of the local authorities or the funds of the Exchequer.

One of the bases of this redistribution of responsibility between the local authority and the central Government would be that the central Government would accept responsibility, both administrative and financial, for assisting all able-bodied unemployed who needed assistance.

The Government adopted an amendment to a censure motion, accepting responsibility for assistance to all able-bodied unemployed under sixty-five years old with such readjustments in the financial relations between the Exchequer and the local authorities as is reasonable, having regard to the necessities of the distressed areas.—British Wireless.

RUSSIAN'S STORY OF SABOTAGE

EFFORT TO IMPLICATE THORNTON

MOSCOW, APRIL 12.

SENSATIONAL AND DAMAGING EVIDENCE was given at the trial of the six Englishmen accused of belonging to counter-revolutionary organisations and of engaging in espionage, sabotage and of bribery.

The accused Englishmen are Alan Monkhouse, Charles Thornton, William MacDonald, John Cushny, Charles Nordwall and A. W. Gregory.

The trial is being held in the Hall of Trade Unions and some 400 people were present. It was noticeable that the slogans emblazoned on cotton streamers which usually adorn Soviet courts were absent.

The Englishmen and the twelve Russians accused with them all sat together, the two Englishmen on whom the prosecution sets the greatest store, Messrs. MacDonald and Thornton, being marshalled as far as possible from their four companions, Messrs. Monkhouse, Cushny, Gregory and Nordwall who occupied the back row.

DRAMATIC EPISODES IN COURT

The evidence which the prosecution advanced in the indictment in support of charges consisted almost exclusively of the depositions of the Russian accused and of the deposition of one of the English accused, MacDonald, who has not been allowed out of bail and who has, during the last four weeks, been in the OGPU prison without being allowed to receive advice or to discuss his case with anyone except the prosecutor or his own State-paid Soviet counsel.

Evidence containing direct insinuations of the guilt of accused apart from that which has been secured from the accused themselves, consists of some extracts from the findings of the Soviet State Commission and of the testimony of two Russians.

One of the latter gave part of his evidence in the OGPU prison, while the evidence of the other consists of a statement to the effect that he had immediately handed to the OGPU, money he had received from Thornton.

THE CHARGES.

The indictment, as a whole, deals with counter-revolutionary activity and wrecking by a group of workmen in the electricity stations, charged with firstly, damaging the plant in order to undermine Soviet industry and to weaken the Soviet State; secondly, collecting and utilising to the damage of the State secret information of military and State importance, thirdly, the bribing of the employees of the State electricity stations in connection with the execution by them of counter-revolutionary work (ing activities).

After the reading of the indictment accused were interrogated as to whether or not they pleaded guilty.

All but one of the Russians pleaded guilty and MacDonald, who was interrogated first of the Englishmen—out of his order in the list of accused—also pleaded guilty. The other five Englishmen interrogated after him, pleaded not guilty.

The plea of guilty by W. H. MacDonald provided a dramatic conclusion to the morning's proceedings in the trial.

The court rose immediately after the pleas had been taken.

"It seems that the Russian bear has twisted the lion's tail," remarked a Soviet spectator to one of Reuter's correspondents when the hubbub caused by MacDonald's plea had begun to subside.

In the afternoon, when the proceedings were resumed a man named Gusev, red-haired and nervous-voiced, was called as the first witness in the trial.

The prisoners listened with rapid attention as the Public Prosecutor, M. Vishinsky, shot out staccato questions.

Gusev told the Court that he belonged at one time to the White Army. He began counter-revolutionary work in the Soviet in 1929 "when he met employees of Metropolitan Vickers."

MILITARY INFORMATION.

He added that he received propositions from MacDonald to supply details of plant, especially of the military departments and the type of shells manufactured.

Amid dramatic silence the Public Prosecutor then called upon MacDonald.

"In what Gusev has said about your acquaintance true?" he asked.

MacDonald replied: "Yes. We were good friends in 1930."

"Why did you ask Gusev for information?" asked M. Vishinsky.

SENSATION.

"In my own interests," MacDonald replied in collected tones. The reply evoked a sensation in court. The principal judge was forced to ring a bell violently to secure silence.

Gusev then proceeded with his evidence, embarking upon a detailed confession of how he wrecked machinery and obtained information.

Gusev declared that he put metal in the machinery at Zlatoust and that MacDonald co-operated in the plan.

MacDonald was again called upon to state whether Gusev was or was not speaking the truth.

MacDonald replied: "Yes. That's true."

He admitted that he gave Gusev 3,500 roubles.

Gusev went on to say that he tried to slow down the rate of production at Zlatoust by sabotage.

MacDonald denied all knowledge of this.

THORNTON ANGRY.

Gusev said that all the sabotaging was directed against the efficiency of the Soviet Army. He added that when he was at other stations, he helped workers to get into touch with MacDonald, who recommended him to Thornton as a man from whom they could get information.

While Gusev was giving this evidence, Thornton was fumbling angrily with his copy of the indictment.

Washington, April 12.

Following reports of dissatisfaction among some nations at the non-acceptance of invitations to participate in the Washington conversations, the State Department has sent a message to forty-four States which will not be personally represented, inviting them to exchange views through diplomatic channels.—Reuter.

SIMMONS GETS THE FIRST HOMER

New York, April 12.

The baseball season opened in unfavourable weather conditions and three of the eight games scheduled were postponed owing to rain.

President Roosevelt threw in the first ball of the season at Washington before 25,000 spectators, who triumphed over the Philadelphia Athletics by a 4-1 score.

The first home run of the season was slogged out by Simmons for Chicago at St. Louis in the American League.

The hitting squads showed that they have yet to get into their stride.

changed letters signed with secret names through a woman named Rabinova. MacDonald also told the secretary at Metropolitan Vickers' office, Mademoiselle Kutuzova, to send instructions to Gusev under a fictitious name.

FIRM'S BUSINESS.

Replying to the Assistant Prosecutor, M. Roginsky, MacDonald, with downcast eyes, declared that he wrote to Gusev but on the firm's business only and not in order to get information.

The prosecution then endeavoured to prove that Thornton was aware that Gusev was carrying on espionage work under the direction of MacDonald.

Thornton was called upon to comment upon allegations made by Gusev. He admitted meeting Gusev at a station buffet in the Ural Mountains.

Thornton said he was aware that Gusev gave MacDonald information concerning the firm's business, but he was not aware of the details.—Reuter.

A FIRESIDE MEETING

ROOSEVELT-HERRIOT —MacDONALD

A QUESTION OF ETIQUETTE

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, Apr. 12.

A suggestion for a fireside meeting at the White House between Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, M. Herriot and President Roosevelt is reported to have been made by Mr. Roosevelt.

It is understood that the suggestion has arisen out of a question of diplomatic etiquette in connexion with the forthcoming Washington conversations.

President Roosevelt has ruled that visiting Prime Ministers will stay at the White House while members of foreign Cabinets will stay at their respective Embassies.

M. Herriot, who is representing the French Government, is neither a member of the Cabinet nor a Premier, but it is believed he will stay at the French Embassy.

Although there is no question of a round table conference, President Roosevelt is reported to have said that he has no objection to meeting Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and M. Herriot simultaneously, and he is of opinion that it would be a good thing "for us all to get together round the White House fireplace."—Reuter.

PIRATES ATTACK VILLAGE

LIMA ISLAND RAID

Early this morning information was received from Gap Rock that the village of Muivan, on Lima Island, had been attacked by pirates. The news was conveyed to Gap Rock by junk fishermen, who escaped in their craft.

Although information is meagre, it is understood that the piracy raid took place at 8 p.m. last night when a number of junks captured the village.

Muivan is fifteen miles due south of Gap Rock and is frequently passed by vessels en route to Manila and Australia. The group of islands are Chinese territory, outside British jurisdiction.

that there was any question of espionage.

"I do not know what you mean by espionage," he added.

The Judge: "It is a bad word."

M. Vishinsky proceeded to read passages from Thornton's alleged depositions, in which he admitted cognisance of espionage activities.

"Is that true?" asked Vishinsky.

Thornton paused and deliberated and then said clearly and loudly, "No!"

"Then why did you admit it on March 15?"

"I was nervous," replied Thornton.

Thornton: No.

Upon this, the Court adjourned. The prisoners left the Court together, only MacDonald showing signs of fatigue.—Reuter.

SUGGESTION OF PEACE MOVE

Harbin, Apr. 13.

Reports from White Russian sources, hitherto unconfirmed, state that Soviet troops are massing not far from Manchuli, from which place their movements can be observed.

Meanwhile a more hopeful element appears in the railway dispute in a report asserting that the Soviet are prepared to agree to return the freight cars taken from the Chinese Eastern Railway, but not the locomotives.

Conditions on the Chinese Eastern Railway continue disturbed.

Mr. W. H. Mr. Donald added that had the Marshal yielded to the Japanese as did Pu Yi, Chang Hsueh-liang would still be in Manchuria.

FLEET MAY BE PURCHASED

Shanghai, April 13.

The plans of the National Government for the formation of a powerful and modern fighting air force, already signalled by the appointment of Lieut. Col. de Bernardi as Commander, went a step further yesterday.

Completely unheralded, Major J. H. Doolittle, one of the world's most famous airmen, and the holder of a number of American speed records, arrived in Shanghai by the Empress of Japan on Monday, and yesterday gave a demonstration of one of the fastest machines ever seen in the Far East.

245 MILES AN HOUR!

Major Doolittle's machine was a biplane fitted with a Wright-Cyclone engine, capable of a speed of 245 miles per hour and with a ceiling of 35,000 feet, a remarkably fast climber into the bargain.

Among the crowd present at the Lungwa Aerodrome, where the demonstration was staged, were some of China's foremost military and aviation officials, all of whom were much impressed by the performance of Major Doolittle and his machine.

It is believed that China will purchase a fleet of the most up-to-date bombers and fighting pursuit planes from the United States.

MAJOR DOOLITTLE.

Major Doolittle first sprang into prominence when he won the Schneider Trophy for the United States, setting a record for that time of 232.47 miles an hour. This was in 1926. In the following year, the Trophy was won from him by de Bernardi, the Italian "ace."

Major Doolittle's exploits since that time have almost been in connection with high-speed planes. He would have piloted the machine which America was preparing for the last Schneider Trophy event, but the machine was not perfected in time for the event, meeting with a mishap in the trials.—Reuter.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

MEET HERE TO-DAY

Mona Moran who supports her mother, travels father, little sister, Kitty, and never-well brother, Bud, is determined to marry for wealth and position. She is receptionist for a Wall Street law firm and in the office sees men of the world to which she aspires. Mona's brother announces that her childhood sweetheart, Steve Escarrell, grandson of the ice and coal dealer, has returned home. Steve disappeared three years earlier and it was rumored he was in prison though Mona never believed this.

CHAPTER III

Mona's day in Garretson, Lawton & Amesbury's exclusive office was filled with a sense of important deeds accomplished. It was a world in which success, like correct manners, was taken for granted, where men were warlords with brisk, confident, conquering steps. Mona met few strangers; she was known by a glorious ambition that drove them toward ultimate success. These men had achieved, were still achieving. Failure was a word as little to be associated with them as the word poverty.

They came from that world to which Mona aspired—that cool, confident world from which fragrant, attractive women wearing costly furs now and then appeared to wrest their lords from the excursions of affairs to attend tea, a polo game, or shopping tour.

Mona knew that nature had endowed her with as much real beauty as any of these women possessed. Often enough had she seen an eyelash flicker at her own loveliness, enhanced rather than subdued by her quiet gown. Frequently as she bent her head to announce Mrs. Thus-and-so's arrival she could sense sharp intake of breath as the import of her own beauty struck home.

With callers, both men and women, Mona was aloof, businesslike, and soft-voiced. She was a part of the excellent Garretson, Lawton & Amesbury machinery, ever conscious of her effect as a human being.

These people, obviously possessing breeding, wealth, poise, were moved by Mona's attractiveness. She had heard murmured references to Botticelli, Burne-Jones, and sea green velvet. Other offerings at her throne occasionally were less subtle. "Where did the old man find that beauty, anyway?"

The old man was Mr. Garretson. Though she sat at the reception desk some distance from his sanctum sanctorum, Mona felt that she served him alone. Mr. Garretson had hired her, Mr. Garretson had recommended the raises in salary which had followed at regular intervals.

She sat in the softly lighted, thickly carpeted reception hall, her molten copper hair gleaming softly against paneled walls, her frills at wrist and throat pure and startling against the somber richness of the flat mahogany desk on which her tiny pad, blotter, and pencils, finely sharpened, rested beside a shining French telephone.

It was Mona's duty to interrogate visitors, separate the wheat from the chaff, and send some away without offense, delay others, convey this and that message to this and that person with just the correct touch.

There was a switchboard operator within, safe in a frosted glass cage, but she transferred the most difficult of her supplicants to Mona. Mona invariably answered all calls for Mr. Garretson and Mr. Amesbury. Mr. Lawton had unusual independence and frequently he answered his own.

"I am sorry, Mr. Amesbury sees no one without an appointment. I'll see if I can find Mr. Lawton for you. . . . Who is calling, please? . . . Mr. Garretson is in conference and cannot be disturbed. I'll see that he receives the message. . . . Yes, Mrs. Thayer, Mr. Lawton has a closing at 11:30. I can get you 15 minutes at 11:30. That 15 minutes would begin at 12:15, with luck, and last an hour, topped by luncheon at the Savarin. Mrs. Thayer was a charming widow. . . . I'll let you know the moment he arrives, Mr. Garretson. . . . No, Mr. Lawton, the Bankers' Club luncheon is Wednesday. . . . Yes, Mr. Amesbury, I'll see that you do not miss your train. . . . The elevator clicked and the door swung open. The light faded as the door closed again behind its out-going passenger, and the car droned on its way.

Setting the telephone back in its place, Mona smiled mechanically at the newcomer. Her heart was in a tumult which he could have been pardoned for not sensing, so controlled was her face.

Though Mona had been with the firm for two years she had not laid eyes on Barry until a month ago. It was rumored that he had displaced his uncle who held the family purse strings until Barry became 30. He had dashed away to Mexico—or was it China?—soon after finishing college.

Here he was back again, confident, gay and the despair of that portion of the debutante list favoring older men. Twenty-eight seemed to many of them the beginning of the senile stage in manhood.

"An I live!" Barry Townsend announced in well simulated surprise. "Portrait of a Red-Haired Lady. Mmm. . . . It is a portrait. . . . No, she starts, she moves. . . . Mona said dryly, "Burne-Jones. Botticelli. I've heard all that."

The young man dropped his bantering. "Miss Moran, I braved the elements and the hour ostensibly to ask old Stroud for an advance. Actually it was to ask you to dine with me. Any evening, any hour, any time. Only the sooner, why the quicker."

His eyes followed the movements of her hands about her desk straightening a few papers. "I've been for heaven knows how long where there wasn't a soul to talk to except my partner. Of course there were a few other white men, but they worked for me. When they weren't cheating me—or trying to—they yessed me. No white women at all."

"Think of it! Never sitting at a table with a woman. Never talking to one or dancing with one. His smile grew boyish. "Have pity on me. Dine with me somewhere on me. Give me a place and do things! The sincerity in his voice touched Mona but she met it flippantly.

It was Barry Townsend, the wild young man of the firm, nephew of one of their most lucrative clients. Tall, well set up. Coffee brown. Yale football team, 1927. Handsome, humorous.

Further than that Mona did not go in her thoughts. It was true, however, that Townsend was charming, wealthy, eligible, attractive—and attracted!

Mona's method in such instances was to reconnoiter, consider and capitulate inter—if at all. And then it would be merely to the extent of the most conservative of invitations.

Though Mona had been with the firm for two years she had not laid eyes on Barry until a month ago. It was rumored that he had displaced his uncle who held the family purse strings until Barry became 30. He had dashed away to Mexico—or was it China?—soon after finishing college.

"If you are dated up tonight, of course that's that," he said reluctantly.

"I—I've made it a rule never to spend the hours after work with people I've met at the office. Firm members, employees or clients. I can't break that rule. I'm sorry."

"Great! I'll remove my business to a rival firm!"

YESTERDAY'S MARKET QUIET

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was quiet yesterday. Business done: 750,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports: Despite bullish business news, the market eased downward and trading was dull owing to the slump in Grain, which was caused by heavy profit-taking.

JAPANESE DUMPING

Solely on economic grounds, the Government of India has denounced the Trade Convention with Japan, under which that country has hitherto enjoyed most-favoured-nation treatment. This is a sequel to the dumping of Japanese commodities, principally piece-goods, although all classes of dumped goods will, of course, be affected by the decision. Japan's depreciated currency and other factors have enabled her to flood the Indian markets with goods at prices which adversely affect India's own industries, and it is purely to protect these industries that the Convention has now been abrogated. This question of Japanese dumping has been much to the fore of late. Lancashire has been complaining loudly of its effects, whilst even here in Hongkong the issue has been raised in the case of the cement industry. The ground on which India has acted could be held to provide justification for the taking of measures to protect the Hongkong cement industry, which has been keenly feeling the effects of Japanese competition at uneconomic prices. The cases, however, are not quite on all fours, inasmuch as Hongkong is, for all intents and purposes, still a free port, whereas India has her own tariff system under which action is easily taken. The question thus arises whether, in view of Hongkong's peculiar position as a distributing centre rather than an actual producer, it would be politic to interfere with its free port status, on which, admittedly, its prosperity has been built up. There is the further aspect that discriminatory tariffs invite retaliation, and it is conceivable that such retaliation might adversely affect the very industries sought to be assisted. Apart from cement, there are other industries in this Colony which would doubtless like protection. Indeed, indications are not wanting that Hongkong is slowly, but surely, developing an industrial character. Particularly is this noticeable on the mainland. There are people who believe that Kowloon and its hinterland will eventually become a big industrial centre, especially when the railway link between Canton and Hankow is forged. This is admittedly looking ahead, but it

Roosevelt

No American president in history has occupied quite the position that President Roosevelt occupies to-day. By a unique combination of circumstances he stands in the spot where all of the hopes and fears of the nation converge. The fears are greater than ever before and the hopes are more passionate. Every problem that the country faces—and there are many of them, overwhelming in size and complexity—has been dumped on his doorstep. The responsibility this puts on his shoulders is tremendous. Because the nature and extent of that responsibility are widely realised, Mr. Roosevelt has begun his term of office with the whole-hearted best wishes of all Americans, regardless of party. This is at once his strength and his weakness. If he succeeds he will succeed greatly; if he fails his failure will be immeasurable. America has come to realize, in the hard years of the depression, that the country can drift no longer—because the drift is toward a cataract. America has also come to realise that the programme to remedy the troubles must come from the "White House"—because experience has shown that it cannot possibly come from anywhere else. To-day as never before, Americans have placed their fortunes, hopes for the future, and confidence in the hands of the President. They have given him, so to speak, a blank cheque and his use of it so far has been admirable.

is well to take note of tendencies. In the meantime, however, we imagine there will be considerable reluctance felt by the Government to interfere with the Colony's free port status, as, once we set our backs on the present system, it would be difficult to retrace our steps should the need arise. On the other hand, no-one can view with equanimity the disastrous effects of dumping on the Colony's biggest industry, in which so much British capital has been invested.

Scolding the Savants

The character of a complete savant, according to the president of the French Academy of Sciences, should, but does not, conform to Dante's definition, "He listens to good purpose who takes note." Savants, said Prof. Charles Richet, are in general negligent listeners. He appealed to the members, most of whom were then presumably listening, to reform this negligence. He admitted that the papers read by savants to a miscellaneous gathering of other savants were sometimes not of general and compelling interest; nevertheless, it would be well for all present to pay attention, and for some to refrain from conversation with their neighbours. He explained this negligence by the opinion that a savant is usually chiefly interested in some special subject, and often seems happier in talking about that subject himself than in listening to others. To the layman these observations may present an unexpected picture of savants in convention. Here, if anywhere, he has very likely thought, knowledge would be listened to with breathless interest, the least grain harvested. He could hardly have imagined two or more savants chatting together while another savant read his paper, the savant now occupying a place in the public thought somewhat akin to that occupied by the philosopher when Plato was planning his republic. But on second thought, such a concentrated attention would have been more likely at a convention of those early philosophers than at a gathering of modern savants. The audience would have been smaller and the interests represented not so multitudinally diverse. The savant is, after all, kith and kin with the layman, like the Colonel's lady and Judy O'Gray, and it detracts nothing from recognition of his profound influence to learn that he is attentive chiefly to matters of his own concern.

DON'T BE A DOORMAT

By HELEN ROSE

Most men and all children are selfish, and it is the greatest mistake for a wife and mother to allow herself to be a doormat to her family. She takes the back seat, and they think she likes it.

Many women are ready to sacrifice themselves entirely to their families. But the time comes when the sacrifice is accepted as a matter of course.

A woman is apt to be deeply wounded when her family is not particularly grateful or appreciative. But she has put herself in the background and let her family have the best of everything. In fact, she has always put herself last, and is deeply hurt when her family leaves her there.

But she shouldn't always be so ready to fetch her husband's shoes and pick up her children's toys. If she insists upon making these sacrifices, let her make it quite clear that they are favours, not rights.

Her family will think a great deal more of her if she occasionally reminds them what a good wife and mother she is.

Husbands don't really care about unselfish wives. They think they do, but the devoted slave-wife is rarely the star of a man's existence. In time he is apt, like most husbands, to take too much for granted, and he is quite likely to regard his wife's devotion in the same way as he regards an easy chair or a good dinner. They are simply there and he merely benefits by them.

A husband is far more likely to be impressed by a wife who points out to him what a treasure he has.

Unselfish mothers also make selfish children. And when a mother complains of lack of thought and consideration in her children, it is probably because she has never taught them to be considerate or attentive to herself. She has made herself their doormat. And people wipe their feet on doormats automatically.

A little spice of genial unselfishness is very good for husband and children.

This may sound cynical, but every-day experience shows that it is the wife and mother with personality, self-regard and a little gay selfishness that is more adored by her husband and children.

Anyhow, a wife and mother has to make quite enough compulsory sacrifice without looking round to find more. And if anyone is to be waited on, it should be the mother and not the children; if anyone is to fetch and carry it should be the husband, and not the wife.

Of course, in the big things of life a good wife and mother will always be ready to make sacrifices.

But it is in the little things of life that too many women make themselves doormats. They take the uncomfortable chair, and eat the burnt toast, and lug parcels, and get up to ring the bell, and take up family breakfasts, and stay at home to mind the house. And these are the things that the family will allow her to do, without thinking, for just so long as she chooses to do it. And they don't love her a bit better for it.

So, for her family's sake, as well as her own, the wife and mother should think before she makes herself the slave of the household. Later on she will quite probably upbraid her husband for being selfish, and reproach her children for being unkind and inattentive. They will resent this, and she will quite fail to see that she has brought it all on herself—that it is her unselfishness that has made them so selfish.

"Oh, Mother won't mind!" is the cruellest epithet that any family can raise. But Mother has written those words herself, because she has chosen, all unknowing, to be the Family Doormat.

WOMAN'S ANNUAL ORGY

By L. C. MOORE.

Once, in the dim, dark ages when people lived in caves, a cave-wife got a bright idea for filling in a slack afternoon.

She turned out the skull-bone ornaments, the wattle mats and her husband, and gave the place a thorough clean from top to bottom.

The lady in the cave next door saw her, and immediately realised that unless she did the same thing her husband might begin to think she wasn't such a good cave-wife as the cat next door.

So she turned out all her belongings including the man. Once started, the idea spread, and the thorough turn-out became an annual orgy.

Every year, just when we feel happy because the buds in the garden are beginning to burst, and the pipes in the loft have ceased to burst, our wives descend upon us with galls and mops.

How Men Suffer

We make a joke of it, but how we suffer. We can't sit down anywhere because there is nowhere to sit down. Before we can retire to rest we have to shift the bedroom furniture out of the bed. We can't drive into the garage until we've moved the dining-room suite out.

And it's all so unnecessary—or should be. Mind you, I don't say it was never necessary. It probably was when the cave-wife started it.

But in these days of modern villas and labour-saving devices—why, do you think that if a man had a house to run he would have to give it a thorough clean once a year? Most definitely not. With his inherent love of system and organisation, he would so arrange his work that every room would automatically be given a complete turn-out once a week.

No dust would be allowed to remain undisturbed for a year; it wouldn't even be allowed to settle. There would be no accumulation of old shoes, old hats, obsolete lamp bulbs and so on to shift from the top of the cupboard; they just wouldn't be put there.

As a consequence, the whole place would be kept so tidy—and spotless that the weekly clean would be a mere matter of routine, instead of the general and ghastly upheaval that the annual do is.

This more I think about it, the more certain I am that it all goes back to that cave-wife. She started it, and no wife since has had the courage to stop it.

"I like these, ma'am. They're so sheer nobody'd guess you had any stockings on."

The Very Idea!

MOTHERS-IN-LAW

By Ed. ("Had Some") Kelly.

"SPEAKING of mothers-in-law," said he in a hushed voice.

They tell us that the mother-in-law jokes have gone out of date nowadays.

We know that. There's no joke about our mother-in-law. If there ever was any joke about mother-in-law, we never found out what it was.

The chief comedian—the party—was reserved exclusively for him—would come on the stage and say, "Now my mother-in-law—"

Immediately everyone in the house would shriek aloud in an agony of mirth and drown his next words.

The comedian would never persist in trying to make himself heard, in case somebody expired.

We gather, however, that the lady in question was supposed to be a combination of a crocodile, a sergeant-major with corns, and a Peak talpan, and her chief occupation in life was to stay with her daughter, so that she could make her daughter's husband's life as miserable as possible.

We have known many mothers-in-law, but none of them have been like that. Most of them are as seductive, as bewitching, and as alluring as a stocking advertisement, only more so.

When she visits her daughter and the despised husband she brings the latest jazz records, dresses in transparent beach pyjamas, and drinks the husband under the table.

And, generally, the poor decrepit old lady gets on so well with her son-in-law that the daughter is the one who becomes miserable.

Hubby falls for the old lady in a big way, and they whisper in corners when the daughter is not looking, and the party ends up in a row with the husband and mother-in-law arrayed against the daughter.

Mind you, we don't want you to get the idea that our mother-in-law is that.

We would not, under any circumstances, cast any reflections on the old hen's character. She may be an interfering, meddling old fool, sticking her nose into other people's business, and causing misery wherever she goes, but it's not for the likes of us to say so.

We may have our opinions, but we trust we are a gentleman.

FAMOUS TRIALS.

Miss Muffet disposed that every evening she sat on a tuffet in the garden to eat curds and whey and listen to the broadcast from the house next door. On this particular evening the defendant suddenly appeared and said, "Hallo, dearie." Witness had never before in her life been spoken to by a man.

Here counsel for the defence interposed and said, "Me lud. My client is not a man. She is a lady." (Sensation.)

The Judge: She doesn't look very ladylike. (Laughter.) Is she married?

Counsel: She has a husband, in a manner of speaking. The fact is, she was married only this morning, and she has since eaten him. It's an old spider's custom.

At this the prosecution withdrew, but the publicity enabled Miss Muffet to go on the stage and she got money from at least two enterprises. One was a furnishing firm, who invented the slogan, "If Miss Muffet had sat on one of our tuffets, nothing would have frightened her away."

The other firm told the world that "Miss Muffet's curds and whey was made with our Essence of Rennet. Try some yourself, and see spiders likewise."

MOSCOW TRIAL
OPENSMACDONALD PLEADS GUILTY

THE INDICTMENTS

Moscow, Apr. 12.

In the blue-daubed room in the Trades Union Hall at noon to-day, the six English employees of Metropolitan Vickers listened to the massive indictment for their trial, on which world interest is centred.

The indictment by the Soviet deals with counter-revolutionary activity by the wrecking group in the electricity stations. They are charged with.

(1) Damaging plant in order to undermine Soviet industry and weaken the Soviet State.

(2) Collecting and utilizing to damage the Soviets, secret information of military and civil importance.

(3) Bribing employees of the electricity stations in connection with the execution of counter-revolutionary and wrecking activities.

It is said that a Soviet expert commission appointed to study the documents reported that the breakdowns were either due to criminal neglect or deliberate wrecking.

Charges Against Gregory.

The indictment charges Gregory with belonging to this wrecking and counter-revolutionary group and with having been occupied in economic, military and civil espionage and conveying it to Thornton.

It accuses Cushman of belonging to the wrecking group and with having been engaged in systematic economic and military espionage, and also, in his capacity as erecting engineer, with organising wrecking acts at the Baku electricity station by deliberately erecting electrical equipment wrongly and dishonestly, resulting in breakdowns.

He is also charged with having bribed Russian engineers and technicians in his espionage and wrecking.

MacDonald is charged with participation in the wrecking group while working in electrical stations at Zlatoust, Zuzgers, and also, in his capacity as erecting engineer, with having collected, on Thornton's instructions, a quantity of secret, military and other information at Zlatoust, Zuzgers and Chelyabinsk.

Another charge against him is that he collected information as regards the output of munition factories and instructing Soviet engineers to commit wrecking acts which resulted in numerous breakdowns.

The indictment further charges MacDonald with bribery of Soviet employees and mentions that a total of 10,000 roubles is involved.

Revolutionary Aims.

Monkhouse is accused of having belonged to the counter-revolutionary group and with having followed counter-revolutionary aims.

Charges against him are:

(1) Collection of secret, military and civil information.

(2) Participation in wrecking and diversionary activities.

(3) Systematically bribing Soviet engineers and technicians in return for wrecking, and espionage.

(4) Systematically bribing Soviet engineers to conceal defects in equipment erected by Metropolitan Vickers.

The indictment accused Nordwall of belonging to the counter-revolutionary group while acting as erecting engineer at Ivry, and with having instructed technicians to wreck the plant and cause breakdowns at Ivry, and bribing technicians with 5,000 roubles for the purpose of concealing defects in Metropolitan Vickers machinery.

Thornton Charged.

The indictment accuses Thornton of belonging to the counter-revolutionary group and with having occupied himself in technical, civil and military espionage and systematically instructing, through his subordinates MacDonald and Cushman, numerous Soviet engineers and technicians to engage in wrecking activities at several electrical stations.

He is also charged with having systematically bribed engineers and technicians for espionage and wrecking and for concealing defects.

The indictment covers the years 1927 to 1932.

Russians' Confessions.

Twelve Russian employees of Metropolitan Vickers are also charged. Among them is Madame Katusova, Secretary of the Moscow Office of the Company, whose alleged confessions, together with the confessions of other Russians, also extracted by Ogpu methods, comprise the evidence.

The indictment mentions MacDonald's alleged admissions but shows that the remaining British prisoners denied the accusations wholesale, except an admission of having given small gratuities for

Three months' leave in Italy is all that Count Galeazzo Ciano, the Italian Minister to China, deems it advisable to take at present. He is proceeding to Italy by the Conte Rosso which arrived in port this morning, and accompanying him are the Countess Ciano and baby son, Fabrizio.

The Countess Ciano is Signor Mussolini's eldest daughter, and one of the main objects of the trip is to present to Il Duce his first grandson.

Interviewed at the Italian Consulate-General, the Count Ciano declined to discuss political events in China or the Sino-Japanese conflict.

From an economic standpoint, however, he felt that China was making steady progress. So much had yet to be done that the progress might be difficult to discern, but after six years in diplomatic circles in the East, he could see the country changing steadily for the better.

Despite talk of depression, he considered Shanghai to be sound at heart. Nanking, too, was making good progress. A big waterworks scheme was being carried out there and in two or three years' time it would be a very pleasant place in which to live.

Count Ciano is well acquainted with conditions in Shanghai, having spent most of the last two years there. He considers that the relations between foreigners and Chinese are quite friendly and still closer co-operation may be expected in the future.

Questioned concerning the re-establishment of an Italian Consulate in Canton, the Italian Minister said such a recommendation had been made, and he hoped the Government would act on it.

At 11.30 a.m. a reception in honour of the Minister was given on board the Italian warship, Quarto. Among those present are Bishop Valterra, the Mother Superior of the Italian Convent and Sisters, the Rev. Fathers Teruzzi, Riganti, and Galbiati. A large number of members of the Italian community also attended.

The collecting of information useful for Metropolitan Vickers, and for the discovery of minor defects which had been remedied.

MacDonald's Admissions.

The indictment alleges that MacDonald admitted espionage under the direction of Thornton and Monkhouse.

The whole of the evidence for the prosecution is based on alleged confessions by the accused on the report of the Soviet expert commission on certain documents.

Accused in Dock.

The five accused who surrendered to their bail, entered the dock guarded by two Red soldiers and were joined later by MacDonald who was bearded and hollow-eyed and the Russian prisoners except one who was ill. A dozen soldiers stood on the red-draped platform.

The court, which was crowded with officials, lawyers and press rose when the judges, dressed in muff, entered.

The President of the Court M. Vasilevitch, questioned the prisoners as regards age, occupation and nationality. MacDonald's replies were almost inaudible.

The clerk of the court, who was surrounded by stacks of documents, started reading into a microphone the enormous indictment. The accused were permitted to sit.

Militia patrolled the streets outside the court preventing the crowds from entering.—Reuter.

At the memorial service to the late Sir Claude Severn at St. John's Cathedral last evening a detachment of Wolf Cubs, under Mrs. O. C. Womack, attended.

Mr. C. A. da Rosa, who has been acting Consul-General for Portugal, departs for Lisbon on the Conte Rosso to-day, and Mr. P. V. Botelho, Vice-Consul, will be in charge of the Consulate.

Joan Harlow, the platinum-blond girl, Miss Clark and Marie Provost are three experienced players taking the title parts in "Three Wise Girls" now being featured at the Queen's. The story is not too strong in cohesion, but it is interesting as seeking to convey the experiences of three girls in a city in which the men for the most part are represented as being too rich for a proper safeguarding of morals and inclined worldlyly to prey on every innocent girl that comes up from the country. "Three Wise Girls" is billed to run until Saturday.

FOOCHOW NOTES
REPORTED CAPTURE OF TINGCHOW

Foochow, Apr. 6.

Rumour has it that Tingchow has been taken by the Nineteenth Army. If this is true, it is good news, as Tingchow has been the Headquarters of the Reds in Western Fukien for four years. One hopes also that the Government will have some constructive plan for solving the agrarian and other problems which are at the back of the Red peril.

The Ching Ming Festival has been observed in and around Foochow with greater enthusiasm than ever, and the brilliantly fine weather has been in keeping with the date.

Yesterday a large group of friends assembled at the Jetty to say farewell to Miss C. J. Lambert, who is going home on furlough. Miss Lambert has seen over forty years service in Foochow, and has laid the whole community under a great debt. She has been specially associated with the C.M.S. Girls' School, and indeed it is unlikely that that school will be what it is now but for her energy, devotion, and wisdom. All her friends hope for her speedy recovery of full health and strength and an early return to the field.—Our Own Correspondent.

CHARGESTHREE FOREIGNERS
IN COURT

The case in which Francis Raymond and Edward Shuster are charged with obtaining $76 from Jimmy's Kitchen, Wanchai branch, by falsely pretending that 20 American trade dollars which they changed were each worth $3.80 Hongkong currency, where-as in point of fact they were worth only a dollar, again came before Mr. Schonfeld at the Central Court to-day.

Mr. M. K. Lo appeared for Shuster, and the case was adjourned for hearing on April 25, at 2.30 p.m.

The case against Jose Loreda Navarro, who was similarly but separately charged, was also mentioned, the accused on his re-appearance expressing a wish to be present at the trial of the other two defendants.

The Magistrate asked Det. Seret. Fitches, the prosecuting police officer, if Navarro was going to give evidence, and the officer replied that the police would have to consider the point.

Navarro's case was formally adjourned for a week.

In reply to the Court, Seret. Fitches said the case against the man Gifford, now under remand, would have to be heard independently, as it did not arise from the same facts.

BANK'S NEW HOME

PREMISES TO BE OPENED
NEXT WEEK

On April 18, the new building of the National Commercial and Savings Bank, on the corner of Ice House Street and Des Voeux Road, will be officially opened.

Including the ground and mezzanine floors, the building is eight storeys high, and is of a unique design. It has been completed two months before the contract time.

The bank offices, will occupy only the ground and mezzanine floors, but a keen demand for office space on the other floors has already set in. Every available foot of space has been let.

The ground floor entrance is done in marble and leads to the horseshoe shaped banking counter. On the left hand side of the entrance are the offices of the exchange manager and the sub-manager. The chief manager's spacious office is on the opposite side.

Nearby are a number of telephone booths for use by exchange brokers.

At the rear of the ground floor, steps lead down to the main treasury room. Here every precaution has been taken against the bank robber. Double steel with combination locks will protect the bank's deposits. Above this vault is the book vault for the bank's account books, also protected by doors almost a foot thick.

Several bank departments are situated on the mezzanine floor. The Board Room overlooks Des Voeux Road.

Here, too, is the highly protected safety deposit vault—burglar and fire-proof. The outer door is of solid steel, opened by the operation of two combination dials.

The inner door is constructed of bars of tested steel.

The comfort and convenience of clients has been the bank's first consideration. Six panelled cubicles, furnished simply, are available for clients who wish to peruse documents withdrawn from the safety deposit vault.

A feature of the offices on the upper floors is the excellent ventilation.

The building contractor is Wing Yik, and the architects Messrs. Palmer and Turner. The marble work is by Raulo Bigazzi and the doors for the treasury and vaults were supplied by Mustard and Company and the Jardine Engineering Corporation.

The micro-movement Waygood-Otis lift was supplied by Dodwell and Company.

EASTER HOLIDAY FOOTBALL FORECAST

5 MINUTES OF FOOTBALL.

CORNER KICKS

HOW THEY SHOULD BE TAKEN—

—AND RECEIVED

(By "Saracen")

It is remarkable that more goals are not scored from corner kicks. The ball travels to the most dangerous spot, or should do so, and yet not once in ten is it sent into the net. This is due to covering of the attackers plus the poor placing of the ball by the kicker, but it always seems to me that scoring opportunities are missed.

One defect by attacking forwards at a corner is that they are inclined to take up their places too close to goal. They should stand ten yards or so out and they should spread out. This makes the covering by defenders more difficult. It also gives the forwards more scope for movement. A player standing close to goal is more or less helpless unless the ball goes to him. It is then often too late to move outwards to meet it because either an opponent or a colleague is likely to be in the way. On the other hand, if he takes up a place ten yards out in the first place he can either go forward as he sees the ball coming over or shift to right or left.

There are two further reasons why it is a mistake to stand too close in. The first is that the ball should not be placed there by the kicker otherwise the goalkeeper will be able to move a step or so forward and use his hands and in this way have a big advantage over a forward who can only attempt to score with his head. The ideal spot for the ball to come down is just too far out for the goalkeeper to come out and yet near enough for a quick header to succeed.

USEFUL TRICK.

The other reason why the forwards should stand back is that a header is always more dangerous when a man can run on to the ball. He gets more force behind it than is possible when he is standing still and has to jump straight up for it.

One corner trick is for the smallest forward to come back to take the place of the centre-half who goes up. This, of course, is only done if the centre-half is a tall man. If he is wise the centre-half will not be in a hurry to advance. He simply stroll forward arriving say fifteen yards out when the kick is about to be taken. From this place he can watch the flight of the ball and move in any way according to its direction. If he makes his advance stealthily it is quite likely, too, that he will not be properly marked by an opponent.

The reason why corners do not produce more goals is that the attackers have to be accurate with their headers, having to get the ball into a prescribed space whereas the opposition have only to get the ball away from their goal and it does not matter a great deal in which direction they send it. Still it always seems to me that more ought to be made of corner kicks.

LAWN BOWLERS PREPARE

RECREIO FEELING CONFIDENT

OLD PLAYERS RETAINED

NO. 5 CLUB DE RECREIO.

Here we have the youngest club in Kowloon, and the most ambitious. Furthermore there is proved and latent talent in abundance with which the Recreio may well realise their ambitions.

The Portuguese made their bow in the Hongkong Lawn Bowls League as recently as 1927, but it only took them the first season to prove their worth, the reserves carrying off the second division championship.

Last year the Club lifted the Spay Royal Cup and the seniors finished runners-up to Craighower in the first division.

And if this logical sequence is maintained it looks fairly likely that the club's ambition to top the senior league is to be realised this summer.

HOW PLAYERS FEEL

Certainly the players feel that way about it. This is how they are expressing it: "Provided nothing unforeseen happens it is expected that the regular players of last year will turn out again this season. The prospects therefore look rosy, considering the fact that the club were runners-up in last year's league with a difference of but three points from the C.C.C. the champions.

An official of the club further reports that those splendid bowlers, R. F. Luz, ex-singles champion of the Colony, and his colleague C. E. Marques, will probably have the same links which gave such excellent support last summer, while new blood may be introduced in C. G. Silva's rink.

This rink is expected to yield much better results than in the past, and everything points to the Recreio first string being one of the best balanced and strongest sides in the Colony.

CUP TO DEFEND.

The second division team are also very keen and their prospects of reaching the top appear to be much brighter than heretofore. They will have the advantage of new talent, guided by their first divisions colleagues.

Beyond the league, the Recreio have the Spay Royal Cup on their hands and it is their intention to see that it remains there. In addition they will be taking part in the International Shield tournament which has been presented by Mr. L. A. Gutierrez.

So far as equipment and facilities are concerned the Recreio are in an extremely happy position. Regarded by all players as one of the best in the Colony, the green this year shows an even improved condition. It enjoys new grass and a few bumps which have been discernible a year ago, have been obliterated to leave the green in a first rate playing state.

Lincolns Take the K.O.

IN MILITARY BOXING TOURNEY

The South Wales Borderers won the military boxing tournament at Murray Barracks last night, when they scored a total of nine victories against the Lincolns' seven.

The Borderers easily captured the Inter-Unit competition, winning six of the eight bouts, but the Lincolns were successful in the Novices, obtaining five of the eight verdicts.

Good class boxing was enjoyed by a large gathering of enthusiasts, and at the conclusion His Excellency the Governor (Sir Williams Peel) presented the prizes to the winners.

NOVICES' COMPETITION.

DECIDING GAME ORDERED

PROTEST AGAINST THE INCOGS: UPHOLD

By "Bully-Oh"

The Mamak hockey committee last evening upheld the protest put in by H.M.S. Tamar against the awarding of points to the Incognitos in connexion with their league fixture which was not played off in the required time.

The decision of the committee means that a replay for the Mamak championship is now necessary, and, according to present arrangements, the Radio and Incognitos, joint leaders, will meet in the deciding game on Saturday.

UNANIMOUS VOTE.

By a unanimous vote, the committee last night found that fault of the H.M.S. Tamar-Incognitos match being played lay with the latter club. They found that the civilians could have played the match earlier in that season if desired, and therefore they refused to award points to the Incognitos because the Tamar had been unable to play the game last Sunday. Saturday's replay match will take place on the Marina ground at 4.30, and the winners will play the Rest of the League on the U.S.R.C. enclosure on Saturday week.

CLUB COLLECT SPOILS

FOOTBALL

Typical mid-week football—lethargic, disjointed and uninteresting—characterised the meeting of the Club and Police in a first division encounter yesterday, when the Club earned two points as a result of a snap goal after being completely on the defensive for two thirds of the game.

E. Strange made the winning goal possible, beating two or three opponents before giving Williams a square pass a few yards from goal which the centre-forward could not miss.

Subsequently the Club should have increased their lead, but S. Strange ballooned over the top from a penalty.

POLICE MEDICINE.

The Police had a taste of the medicine given the Recreio when they met last Saturday. They should never have lost on the run of the play. Only the appalling work of Ralton and the rest of

Williams, who scored the Club's goal by which they beat the Police in a league match yesterday.

The Club defence kept the Police out in the early stages of the game, and it was not until they had been put in arrears that the Police lost a grip on the game.

E. Strange and Williams were the pick of the Club attack, whilst Hyndes shone in the half back line and Ralton defended ably.

The Police looked thorough understanding and finished poorly. T. Pile was a good worker up forward, but the rest were not mediocre.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

The early ambition of Spencer Tracy was to become a great surgeon, but instead, more by force of circumstances than anything else, he became an actor. It was while he was attending Marquette University that a series of events changed the trend of his plans. There he was induced to portray a role in a college play and he enjoyed it so much that he decided to leave Marquette and enter the American Academy of Dramatic Art where he laid the foundation for his career on the stage and screen. In "Me and My Gal", Tracy plays the role of an impetuous young detective who finds romance with a girl cashier in a restaurant, a love affair that leads him to the trail of a murderer on whose head there is a reward of $10,000. It is said to be a gripping drama of life in New York, tempered by rich comedy situations. The picture was directed by Raoul Walsh who directed "Wild Girl", Miss Bennett's recent success, "The Yellow Ticket" and "The Cock Eyed World".

"As You Desire Me"
Greta Garbo in an exotic silver wig and black harlequin costume presents a vivid portrayal as the heroine of Pirandello's great play, "As You Desire Me". The screen version of this stage hit opens on Saturday at the Queen's Theatre. "As You Desire Me" affords Miss Garbo a dual character, as it were, later changing her personality and mood to fit the demure and fragile creature into whose memory she projects her life. Laden with metaphysics and psychology, it is a story of regeneration done in a cleverly different manner. Indeed, the story is so unusually appealing in a unique treatment, that it holds the interest of a genuine life drama. Miss Garbo, if it needs to be said, is, as usual, magnificent. Her every inflection, slightest gesture, adds potency to the role in which she obviously submerged herself. Miss Garbo's talents are entirely undivided and, in the opinion of this reviewer, the most artistic screen has produced since its inception. As Zara, the café entertainer who masquerades as the missing wife of Count Bruno, distracted war veteran, Miss Garbo eclipses her greatest triumphs. While not as completely sympathetic as some of her previous parts, the Pirandello role offers her the widest latitude in emotionalism she has ever played. George Fitzmaurice, who directed Miss Garbo in "Mata Hari", also directed "As You Desire Me", from Gene Markey's adaptation of the stage hit. Melvyn Douglas, one of the screen's newest romantic sensations, plays opposite the glamorous star, enacting the role of the Italian nobleman who accepts the woman with a past as the wife who was torn from him in the devastation of warfare. Erich Von Stroheim provides sufficient menace as Zara's persecutor, Saltar. The remainder of the excellent cast includes Hedda Hopper, Rafaela Ottiano, Warburton Gable, Albert Conti, William Riechardt and Roland Varno. "Say It with Music"

"Robbers' Roost"
Librarians say that Zane Grey's novels are more in demand than any other books on their shelves. Publishers, however, reveal the even more interesting fact that during the past fifteen years, Grey's works have outsold all other books with the exception of the Bible. One of his most successful stories, which was serialised in a national weekly before its publication in book form, is "Robbers' Roost", a realistic tale of cattle rustlers in Arizona. Fox films executives recognized the volume as an ideal vehicle for George O'Brien, who holds the distinction of being the most popular of all Western screen actors. The picture version of this thrilling novel is now showing at the King's Theatre.

"Three Wise Girls"
It's a wise girl, who knows her man—and it's a wiser girl, who knows how to get her man and keep him. But, those three girls, Mae Clarke, Jean Hanton and Marie Prevost, in "Three Wise Girls", the Columbia film now showing at the Queen's Theatre, are said to be the most knowing of their species—wise in wisecracks, wise to wiseguys and possessed of a wisdom of their own. Others, who contribute their talents to this sophisticated comedy drama, are Natalie Moorhead, Lucy Beaumont, Katherine Glare Ward and Armand Kaliz. "Three Wise Girls" was adapted from the story, "Blonde Baby," William Beaudine directed.

Dear Sir,—I shall be grateful if you will let me use your columns to send a Good Friday message to your readers.

Good Friday is a holiday because a Good Man died on that day. I know that many who are not Christians will pay some mark of respect to the memory of Jesus of Nazareth on Good Friday. They may think we Christians over-estimate his divinity; but they know it is impossible to over-estimate his humanity.

STEAMER SINKS NEAR H.K.

NORWEGIAN
FREIGHTER LOST

POLICE RESCUES

Heavy mist and strong current setting towards the shore are believed to be responsible for the sinking of the Norwegian steamer, Fjorden, which struck Cheung Chau Rock at 6.45 p.m. last night while on her way to Hongkong with a cargo of 43,000 piculs of rice.

The first authentic news of the wreck was provided when the No. 4 police launch, the first to reach Cheung Chau after the call for assistance had gone out, returned to the police pier at Kowloon.

It was loaded down to the plimsoll with 52 Chinese and five European survivors, who had been rescued from lifeboats and junks.

The European officers were seated in the mess-room of the launch. The captain was wearing a uniform borrowed from one of the police officers, while the others were clad in dishevelled overalls and borrowed clothing.

All showed signs of having passed through a severe ordeal, and their strange clothing testified to the haste with which they had abandoned the ship. Many of the Chinese escaped with no clothing on whatever.

Interviewed immediately after the arrival of launch at the police pier, Capt. Ormestad told the story of the wreck.

Just as darkness was settling down the ship ran into a mist on the East side of Cheung Chau. She had not proceeded far when there was a splintering crash forward, and she came to a dead stop.

As the Fjorden struck, she heeled over hard to port. Water came pouring into the engine room and No. 1 hold.

The chief and second engineers escaped in the nick of time.

Passengers' Panic.

Among the passengers all was panic and confusion. They rushed wildly hither and thither trying to cram into lifeboats.

It was fortunate that two Aberdeen junks were fishing in the vicinity. Immediately they saw that the Norwegian vessel was in distress they hastened across to the assistance of the crew. The Captain and Chief Engineer remained aboard the stricken vessel until almost the last minute.

Small lifeboats hurried the crew across to the two junks which, however, left before the European officers had cleared the ship.

At 7.15 p.m. it was evident that the Fjorden's fate was sealed and she began to go down bow first.

At 7.30 p.m. She took her final plunge.

There was no time for any personal effects to be saved. Captain, Officers, crew and passengers lost everything they possessed.

Asked what he considered was the cause of the wreck, Capt. Ormestad said the poor visibility combined with a strong current setting shorewards had undoubtedly been powerful contributing factors.

The Rescue.

Immediately the ship struck wireless messages were sent out for assistance. The tugs, Edith, Kau Sing and Henry Keawick were immediately commissioned, but before they could make a move No. 4 Police Launch was steaming at 18 knots from her Mira Bay patrol to answer the S.O.S. call.

She arrived first on the scene and immediately set about the rescue work. The dingy with the five Europeans was found drifting aimlessly, waterlogged and half submerged. The occupants were taken off and given dry clothes.

The passengers and crew who were taken off the two fishing junks were transferred to the police launch.

Two Still Missing.

Only two remain unaccounted for, but it is almost certain that they were picked up by a sampan. Late reports state that they left the wreck in a small dingy which capsized and were picked up.

It was nearly 12.30 a.m. this morning when No. 4 Police Launch arrived back with the rescued men. All were immediately taken in hand by the Norwegian vessel's agent. The passengers and crew were taken to Chinese hotels in Yaumati while the officers were suitably accommodated elsewhere.

The Fjorden was a regular caller at Hongkong, being employed on the run between Bangkok and the Colony.

She left Bangkok on Wednesday last at 10.30 a.m. with a cargo of 43,000 piculs of rice, and was expected in port yesterday.

Ship's History.

The vessel was a steel screw steamer of 1,625 tons nett. She has had a most interesting career since she was launched at the Schiffs a.v. Shipbuilding Yards in Germany. Her original names were the Rheingraf, Blumberg, and Rudolph, respectively, but after the outbreak of the Great War, she was seized by the United States, converted into a Coastal Defence vessel, and renamed the Beaufort. After the Great War she was decommissioned and sold to her present owners, the D/S A/S Fjorden, of Bergen, Norway.

The ship was constructed upon naval lines, and was one of the first, other than naval vessels, to have a cruiser stern.

European Officers.

The European officers were Captain Ormestad, Oswald Bokke, Chief Engineer, Olaf Følstov, Second Engineer, Wilgot Johansen, Chief Officer and Yngve Vang.

If You Saw Inside Yourself

What would you find? Would you find your food tract in a clean and healthy condition? Or would you find it congested and unhealthy?

If the latter were the case you could not expect to feel well and happy. Any accumulation which is allowed to go on in your food tract militates against your well-being in many ways. The digestive system reacts to the congestion, resulting in poor digestion, flatulence, fullness after meals, loss of appetite, liveriness and sometimes severe bilious attacks. Accumulated waste matter also contaminates the blood stream, causing loss of energy, making you liable to colds, headaches, dizziness. And sometimes the impurities lodge under the skin causing pimples or boils. To keep fit and happy you must avoid constipation by the use of Pinkettes. This splendid all-vegetable laxative is the nearest approach to nature you can get. Pinkettes, Liver and Laxative Perfection, keep you clean inside. Take a dose or two and note how much happier you feel. All chemists can supply you with Pinkettes.

MEMORIAL SERVICE TO SIR CLAUD SEVERN.

REV. G. T. WALDEGRAVE'S STIRRING TRIBUTE

"No-one could be so consistently happy as Sir Claud Severn and so radiate happiness, unless the true joy of God possessed him. . . sympathy and happiness. . . joy and love; and now he has passed on into the presence of God, into the fullness of joy."

These words were feelingly spoken by the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave, Chaplain to the Missions to Seamen, in his address at the memorial service to Sir Claud Severn, formerly Colonial Secretary of Hongkong, held in St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon.

The Bishop of Victoria, Rt. Rev. Ronald Hall, Rev. N. V. Halward and Rev. A. D. Stowart participated in the service, which was of a simple but impressive nature. Two hymns and Psalm 23 were sung, and the Lesson was taken from the Revelation of St. John. The Cathedral choir, with Mr. F. Mason at the organ, attended.

Governor Present.

H.E. the Governor, Sir William Peel, accompanied by Capt. Walter, A.D.C., and H.E. the G.O.C. Major-General O. C. Borrett, were present, and among other officials present were, Mr. Justice and Mrs. J. R. Wood, Hon. W. T. and Mrs. Southern, Hon. Mr. C. G. and Mrs. Alabaster, Hon. Mr. E. D. C. and Mrs. Wolfe, Hon. Mr. A. E. Wood, Hon. Sir Henry and Lady Pollock, Hon. Sir Shou-son, Chow, Mr. Justice R. E. Lindell, Hon. Dr. R. H. and Mrs. Kotewall, Hon. Dr. S. W. Tso, Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Mr. W. Schofield, Mr. N. L. Smith.

In the absence through illness of Mr. J. Owen Hughes, District Grand Master of Hongkong and South China, English Constitution, and of his Deputy Mr. J. L. McPherson in Swatow, the District Grand Lodge was represented by other officers. University Lodge of Hongkong, of which Sir Claud Severn was a Founder, was also represented.

The Rev. G. T. Waldegrave said:

"In the various accounts of our Lord's words and actions I often think that there is one thing missing, a description of the impression taken away by a stranger after a single heart to heart talk with him. I am quite sure that that man would say that the Master was especially interested in his case, and most sympathetic. In later years he would add 'He was a great friend of mine and it was a very happy experience to be with him.'"

"I do not know at what period in his life Sir Claud Severn heard the call of Christ and decided to throw himself so far as he was able into active participation in work under the Cross, but he surely followed the example of Him who called Himself the Son of Man in showing genuine interest in and sympathy with all around him: so much so that we here, who knew him, the representatives of I suppose every branch and activity of the life in this Colony felt that we could individually claim him as a personal friend, who in conversation made us sure that, we alone, were the very people he wanted to see just then, and that our business was all that really mattered."

Warmhearted Interest.

"Nor was this warmhearted interest restricted to those of his own age and outlook. Who can forget the tremendous enthusiasm among the students of the University when he received his Honorary Degree. And those present can have other than the happiest memories of the Wolf Cub Rally at Tanderagee when he entertained and amused his younger brethren. Any gathering was the merrier for his presence, for he did not believe in silent sympathy only. His aim would seem to have been to drive away the dull aches of life with the medicine of a merry heart. Christ, at the time when his disciples were beset

BOUND FOR AKYAB.

CAPTAIN BERTRAM LEAVES ALOR STAR

Alor Star (F.M.S.), Apr. 12. Capt. Bertram, the German aviator, arrived here yesterday afternoon and departed this morning for Akyab. He is flying from Sourabaya (April 11) to Berlin where he hopes to arrive on April 10.

This flight is a continuation of the one started in Australia last December but which was interrupted when Bertram crashed at Sourabaya with a stowaway on board.—Router.

with worry and anxious bewilderment spoke to them of joy, a joy that no man could take from them. No one could be so consistently happy as Sir Claud Severn and so radiate happiness, unless the true joy of God possessed him. Happiness is given us to pass on and most of us here know how successful he was in doing that.

"Sympathy and happiness, joy and love—and now he has passed on into the fullness of joy and a peace which passes all understanding."

The Promised Peace.

"I do not know what ideas you may have of that promised peace in the great Hereafter, but for me it does not mean the crossing of tired hands, and endless rest of inactivity. Surely to promise a sufferer mere freedom from pain is a negative sort of hope to offer, for the real joy would be to be able to do things as other folk, without let or hindrance. So too for active people such as Sir Claud was, such a future would hardly seem a heaven. We could never think of him resting out in retirement. We knew that he would throw himself wholeheartedly into the life of these amongst whom he settled, though it was the humlet church must take the place of this Cathedral, 2—parochial politics supplant the greater affairs of State, and inter-tribe matches be superseded by 1—village-green rivalries."

"It is possible for the busiest of men on earth to be full of the Peace of Heaven, the peace that comes from the knowledge, with pardon, the peace that brings with it power, for the Peace of God has its place on earth just as much as in the world to come. No loving happy nature can be truly such without that peace, and as this life is but an image of the heavenly, love and joy with the attendant sister, peace that doth dwell on this earth but in the presence of God they are transcendently glorified, and I am sure that those who have passed beyond the veil are not spending their time of waiting in silent inactivity. Christ has need of them and has some work for them to do of greater power and value than anything he bade them do for him amongst us."

Sympathies Expressed.

"There is no need to grieve for him for whose life we now thank God. He has left behind him memories of friendship and happiness, of warmheartedness, enthusiasm and generosity and he has been called to higher service in the presence of his Lord whom he tried to serve in so joyous a manner on earth."

"But he has been called away just at a time when the help of husband and father would seem to be most needed. To the gracious lady who shared the closing years of his life and to their children we would offer our heartfelt sympathy, knowing that their actual bereavement loss is far greater than any sense of personal loss that we may feel."

We commend them to Him who taught us to pray to Our Father in Heaven, well knowing that even when stunned by the shock of sudden parting, even though but for a while they may feel assured of the presence of One with them even in the Valley of the shadow of death. Over them too may the Peace of God be spread."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

There are a number of different squeeze plays in bridge, any of which will produce a thrill to the player who is successful in making one of them.

Some say that the Vienna coup is the rarest of squeeze plays. However I believe that the rarest squeeze—and the most thrilling—is the one where you force one opponent to squeeze the other.

This is the play generally termed the "suicide squeeze," and it is well illustrated in the following hand:

♠K-7-3-2	♠10-9-8-5
♥9-5-4	♥K-J
♦K-5-4-3	♦K-J-10-2
♣9-2	♣A-7
WEST	EAST
♠A-Q-4	♠A-Q-8
♥A-Q-8	♥A-10-7
♦A-10-7	♦K-6-4-3
♣A-7	♣A-7

The Bidding

South, the dealer, should open the bidding with one no trump. West would pass and North, without a five-card suit, but with two kings, should bid two no trump which South would carry to three no trump.

The Play

West's opening lead is the queen of clubs. East goes right up with the ace in order to unblock the suit and returns the seven. Declarer refuses to win the trick and West wins with the ten.

He returns the jack of clubs, a small heart is discarded from dummy and East discards the deuce of hearts. Declarer wins the trick with the king of clubs.

He now sees that in order to make his contract he must find the king of hearts in the East hand. Therefore the seven of diamonds is played and won in dummy with the king. The nine of hearts is led, East plays the ten and declarer fineses the queen, which wins the trick.

He now cashes his ace and queen of spades, on which West's jack of spades drops, warning the declarer that East still holds two spades, and therefore has the spade suit stopped.

Declarer has already lost two club tricks, and it looks as though he must still lose a heart, a diamond and another club. This, of course, would stop him from making his contract.

There is no way for him to work a squeeze play with his own cards therefore he decides to try to let West squeeze his partner, East.

He leads the six of clubs, which West wins with the eight of clubs the three of diamonds being discarded from dummy.

East already feels the pinch—he cannot discard a spade, or dummy's two spades will be good. The discard of a heart will give declarer the two heart tricks. He finally discards the jack of diamonds.

This now makes the declarer's ace and ten of diamonds good.

West continues with his five of clubs, the four of diamonds is discarded from dummy and—again—East finds himself squeezed. All he can do is to discard his queen of diamonds, and now regardless of what West returns, the declarer is bound to make the ace and ten of diamonds, the ace of hearts, and are hastily preparing the legislation necessary to give the Presity to negotiate reciprocal trade pacts.

Mr. Roosevelt will receive his

KOWLOON WEDDING.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT MEMBERS MARRIED

Two members of the staff of the Central British School were married at the Union Church, Kowloon, yesterday morning,
when Miss Clair Couper Munro, third daughter of the Rev. J. J. and Mrs. Munro of Newcastle-up-Tyne, became the bride of Mr. M.
W. Mulenhy, son of Mr. M.
Mulenhy and the late Mrs.
Mulenhy, of Newcastle-up-Tyne.
The Rev. Dr. E. L. Allen officiated.
The bride, wearing a dress of hydrangea blue georgette, matched by Eunice, with hat to match, entered the church on the arm of Mr. G. Franklin Nightingale, Headmaster of the Central British School, by whom she was given away. The bride carried a bouquet of sweet peas.

Mrs. Ephraums, sister of the bride, was matron of honour and Mr. E. H. Williams, District Officer, Tai-po, was best man.
The couple later left for Cheung Chau where the honeymoon is being spent. The bride's going away dress was of wedding blue flowered silk, with cape and hat of French blue, made by Eunice.

The appointment is interpreted as signifying that Japan is more concerned with the political than the economic aspects.—Reuter.

CUSTOMS DUTIES

INTERPORT RATES TO BE REDUCED

A resolution has been adopted by the South-west Political Council at Canton prohibiting all customs authorities from the imposition of a transit duty on domestic products despatched from one treaty port to another part of the country via another treaty port. Members in attendance included Messrs. Chan Chai-long, Chou Lu, Hsiao Fu-cheng, Tang Tsang-yu, Lin Yun-kai, Liu Chi-wen, Ma Chun-wu and Li Sin-kan.

Although the measure report above does not explain in detail, the decision may have great effect on Hongkong industries. If the term "domestic products" means products manufactured with Chinese capital, labour and raw materials. It is considered significant that the Mayor, Mr. Liu Chi-wen, was present at the discussion at this Canton Council meeting and he might have been responsible for the suggestion, following the Hongkong Chinese merchants' negotiations with him on the subject when he visited here last week.

In reply to the Canton Government's unofficial appeal to Hongkong merchants for investment and assistance in the reconstruction of Kwangtung, Chinese leaders here pointed out that to encourage trade between the two ports Customs duties on Chinese products manufactured in Hongkong and Kowloon must be reduced, and since then Hongkong merchants, with the aid of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, have prepared a petition which may be sent shortly to the Canton Government.

SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE IN MOSCOW TRIAL

BRITISH CABINET DISCUSSION
SPECIAL MEETING AFTER TRIAL
(Special to "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph. Copyright, 1933. Received, April 13, 11.19 a.m.)
London, April 13.
It is learned that at a meeting of the Cabinet last night, it was decided that Mr. Baldwin should, in the absence of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, call a meeting of the Cabinet immediately after the Moscow trial to consider the position, if it is thought necessary.—Reuter.

AVIATRIX TO FLY TO HONGKONG
DEFYING BAD WEATHER
DID NOT LEAVE YESTERDAY
Mademoiselle Maryse Hiltz, the French airwoman, did not leave Haiphong yesterday as expected owing to the stiff headwinds prevailing and the unsettled weather generally. But weather or no weather, she proposes to make an attempt to reach Hongkong this afternoon.
Mademoiselle Hiltz has been in constant touch with Mr. C. W. Jefferies, of the Royal Observatory, regarding conditions for flying between Haiphong and Hongkong and seems tired of waiting.
To-day Mlle. Hiltz sent a message to Mr. Jefferies as follows: "Propose to attempt to fly to Hongkong in spite of bad weather north of Hongkong."
"Hope to arrive in Hongkong this evening."

FJORDEN WRECK
MASTS VISIBLE ABOVE WATER
SALVAGE EFFORTS COMMENCE
The two Chinese members of the crew of the wrecked steamer Fjorden, which sank off Cheung Chau last night, are still missing, although no anxiety is felt for their safety.
The men left the sinking ship in a small lifeboat, which capsized, and when last seen, were being pulled aboard a sampan. The information was conveyed across the intervening water that the sampan would bring them into Hongkong.
Interviewed this morning, the agents of the Fjorden, Messrs. Wallom and Company, of Prince's Building, said the wreck had been located in five fathoms of water off Cheung Chau. The masts and the tip of the funnel are above water.
The Norwegian marine surveyor, accompanied by a diver, left early this morning to make an examination of the wreck.
The fore and aft holds are loaded with rice, which is liable to considerable expansion, and in order to prevent the hull of the ship from bursting it will be necessary for the diver to remove the hatches.
FAIR WEATHER
The anticyclone has moved eastward to Central Japan. Moderate monsoon will prevail over the China coast and the Northern China Sea. Local forecast:—East wind, moderate; fair.

SENSATIONAL AND DAMAGING EVIDENCE was given at the trial of the six Englishmen accused of belonging to counter-revolutionary organisations and of engaging in espionage, sabotage and of bribery.
The accused Englishmen are Alan Monkhouse, Charles Thornton, William MacDonald, John Cushny, Charles Nordwall and A. W. Gregory.
The trial is being held in the Hall of Trade Unions and some 400 people were present. It was noticeable that the slogans emblazoned on cotton streamers which usually adorn Soviet courts were absent.
The Englishmen and the twelve Russians accused with them all sat together, the two Englishmen on whom the prosecution sets the greatest store, MacDonald and Thornton, being marshalled as far as possible from their four companions, Messrs. Monkhouse, Cushny, Gregory and Nordwall who occupied the back row.

DRAMATIC EPISODES IN COURT
The evidence which the prosecution advanced in the indictment in support of charges consisted almost exclusively of the depositions of the Russian accused and of the deposition of one of the English accused, MacDonald, who has not been allowed out on bail and who has, during the last four weeks, been in the OGPU prison without being allowed to receive advice or to discuss his case with anyone except the prosecutor or his own State-paid Soviet counsel.
INSINUATIONS OF GUILT.
Evidence containing direct insinuations of the guilt of accused apart from that which has been secured from the accused themselves, consists of some extracts from the findings of the Soviet State Commission and of the testimony of two Russians.
One of the latter gave part of his evidence in the OGPU prison, while the evidence of the other consists of a statement to the effect that he had immediately handed to the OGPU, money he had received from Thornton.

THE CHARGES.
The indictment, as a whole, deals with counter-revolutionary activity and wrecking by a group of workmen in the electricity stations, charged with firstly, damaging the plant in order to undermine Soviet industry and to weaken the Soviet State; secondly, collecting and utilising to the damage of the State secret information of military and State importance; thirdly, the bribing of the employees of the State electricity stations in connection with the execution by them of counter-revolutionary wrecking activities.
After the reading of the indictment accused were interrogated as to whether or not they pleaded guilty.
All but one of the Russians pleaded guilty and MacDonald who was interrogated first of the Englishmen—out of his order in the list of accused—also pleaded guilty. The other five Englishmen interrogated after him, pleaded not guilty.
The plea of guilty by W. H. MacDonald provided a dramatic conclusion to the morning's proceedings in the trial.
The court rose immediately after the pleas had been taken.
"It seems that the Russian bear has twisted the lion's tail," remarked a Soviet spectator to one of Reuter's correspondents when the hubbub caused by MacDonald's plea had begun to subside.
In the afternoon, when the proceedings were resumed a man named Gusev, red-haired and narrow-voiced, was called as the first witness in the trial.
The prisoners listened with rapt attention as the Public Prosecutor, M. Vishinsky, shot put staccato to questions.
Gusev told the Court that he belonged at one time to the White Army. He began counter-revolutionary work in the Soviet in 1929 "when he met employees of Metropolitan Vickers."
MILITARY INFORMATION.
He added that he received propositions from MacDonald to supply details of plant, especially of the military departments and the type of shells manufactured.
Amid dramatic silence the Public Prosecutor then called upon MacDonald.
"Is what Gusev has said about your acquaintance true?" he asked.
MacDonald replied: "Yes. We were good friends in 1930."
"Why did you ask Gusev for information?" asked M. Vishinsky.
SENSATION.
"In my own interests," MacDonald replied in collected tones. The reply evoked a sensation in court. The principal judge was forced to ring a bell violently to secure silence.
Gusev then proceeded with his evidence, embarking upon a detailed confession of how he wrecked machinery and obtained information.
Gusev declared that he put metal in the machinery at Zlatoust and that MacDonald co-operated in the plan.
MacDonald was again called upon to state whether Gusev was or was not speaking the truth.
MacDonald replied: "Yes. That's true."
He admitted that he gave Gusev 3,500 roubles.
Gusev went on to say that he tried to slow down the rate of production at Zlatoust by sabotage.
MacDonald denied all knowledge of this.
THORNTON ANGRY.
Gusev said that all the sabotage was directed against the efficiency of the Soviet Army. He added that when he was at other stations, he helped workers to get into touch with MacDonald, who recommended him to Thornton as a man from whom they could get information.
While Gusev was giving this evidence, Thornton was fumbling angrily with his copy of the indictment.
Gusev then said that when MacDonald left Zlatoust, he was changed letters signed with secret names through a woman named Rimova. MacDonald also told the secretary at Metropolitan Vickers' office, Mademoiselle Kutuzova, to send instructions to Gusev under a fictitious name.

FIRM'S BUSINESS.
Replying to the Assistant Prosecutor, M. Roginsky, MacDonald, with downcast eyes, declared that he wrote to Gusev but on the firm's business only and not in order to get information.
The prosecution then endeavoured to prove that Thornton was aware that Gusev was carrying on espionage work under the direction of MacDonald.
Thornton was called upon to comment upon allegations made by Gusev. He admitted meeting Gusev at a station buffet in the Ural Mountains.
Thornton said he was aware that Gusev gave MacDonald information concerning the firm's business.—Reuter.

LIMA ISLAND RAID
Early this morning information was received from Gap Rock that the village of Mulwan, on Lima Island, had been attacked by pirates. The news was conveyed to Gap Rock by junk fishermen, who escaped in their craft.
Although information is meagre, it is understood that the piracy raid took place at 8 p.m., last night when a number of junks captured the village.
Mulwan is fifteen miles due south of Gap Rock and is frequently passed by vessels en route to Manila and Australia. The group of islands are Chinese territory, outside British jurisdiction.
that there was any question of espionage.
"I do not know what you mean by espionage," he added.
The Judge: "It is a bad word."
M. Vishinsky proceeded to read passages from Thornton's alleged depositions, in which he admitted cognisance of espionage activities.
"Is that true?" asked Vishinsky.
Thornton paused and deliberated and then said clearly and loudly, "No!"
"Then why did you admit it on March 15?"
"I was nervous," replied Thornton.
"Did they apply third degree methods. Did you suffer?"
Thornton: No.

C.E.R. WAR PERIL RUMOURED MASSING OF SOVIET TROOPS SUGGESTION OF PEACE MOVE

Harbin, Apr. 13.
Reports from White Russian sources, hitherto unconfirmed, state that Soviet troops are massing not far from Manchuria, from which place their movements can be observed.
Meanwhile a more hopeful element appears in the railway dispute in a report asserting that the Soviet are prepared to agree to return the freight cars taken from the Chinese Eastern Railway, but not the locomotives.
Conditions on the Chinese eastern railway continue disturbed.
Barracks yesterday tore up the track and derailed a passenger train travelling towards the west near Tienjiaung. They then subjected the coaches to a fusillade of rifle fire, with the result that three were killed and many injured.—Reuter.

Mr. W. H. Donald, the Marshal's adviser, told a representative of the Telegraph that although the Marshal spent a fortune financing the Chinese volunteers in Jehol and Manchuria and although during all this time the Nanking Government did not send one man, one bullet or one dollar, the Chinese heaped criticism on the Marshal and never gave him credit.
Mr. Donald added that had the Marshal yielded to the Japanese as did Pu Yi, Chang Hsueh-liang would still be in Manchuria.

(Special to "Telegraph")
(Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages. Ordinance, 1921. Received, April 13, 5.27 a.m.)
Shanghai, April 13.
The plans of the National Government for the formation of a powerful and modern fighting air force, already signalled by the appointment of Lieut. Col. de Bernardi as Commander, went a step further yesterday.

Completely unheralded, Major J. H. Doolittle, one of the world's most famous aviators, and the holder of a number of American speed records, arrived in Shanghai by the Empress of Japan on Monday, and yesterday gave a demonstration of one of the fastest machines ever seen in the Far East.
245 MILES AN HOUR!
Major Doolittle's machine was a biplane fitted with a Wright-Cyclone engine, capable of a speed of 245 miles per hour and with a ceiling of 35,000 feet, a remarkably fast climber into the bargain.
Among the crowd present at the Lungchow Aerodrome, where the demonstration was staged, were some of China's foremost military and aviation officials, all of whom were much impressed by the performance of Major Doolittle and his machine.
It is believed that China will purchase a fleet of the most up-to-date bombers and fighting pursuit planes from the United States.

Collin Clive and Raquel Torres

Hollywood.—New hats are veritable "crowns of glory" not only because of their jaunty becomingness but because they are made of shiny stuffs that gleam and shimmer.

Raquel Torres, lunching at the Brown Derby with Preston Sturges and Collin Clive, distinguished British playwright, wore the loveliest little turban of shiny jet cellophane. It was draped with a little ornament on the left side where her collar, up off her hair. She wore a gray spring coat, with fur raised.

Sheila Terry wore a navy blue sailor of shiny straw when she was lunching at the Ambassador with her mother and other the day. Her street frock was of navy blue wool crepe with an Ascot scarf of white pique, very wide at the ends.

I saw Maureen O'Sullivan, lunching at the Brown Derby with Kussell Gleason and Muriel, had chosen a red, shiny straw hat. It matched the red and white printed blouse which she wore with her gray suit with puff sleeves. There is much to be said for the combination of red and gray this spring.

Glenda Farrell lunching at Levy's with Allen Jenkins topped off her costume with a shiny brown straw hat. The outfit consisted of a dark brown woollen coat with red fox collar and cuffs, and the neck and all the way down to the hem.

I have been to group discussion in which the amount of intelligence and sagacity of mothers produced on me a warm glow of content and I went home feeling that all was well with the world. On the other hand I have had the opposite experience now and then and I would begin to suspect that all was not so hopeful and that a little knowledge, or, let us say "hearsay knowledge" was a pretty dangerous thing.

Of the two, the woman who has nothing to rely on but her own common sense and natural understanding of her children and the one who gets a heterogeneous mattering of distorted facts that she does not comprehend and cannot apply—of these two give me just plain "mother," please, without any of the trimmings.

Eagerness to Learn

But perhaps this is unfair. The very eagerness of women to learn the best ways of handling their problems is a thing to be admired and praised. Can it at times once in a while become an over-zealous discipline who has it all wrong. The spirit is the thing and we are all learning. Some of us a little, some a good deal.

But I believe this is the right time for all of us to stop and summarize the situation. In one small community, for instance, where the mothers go along with books under their arms and the words "child training" on their lips morning, noon and night, I believe it would be well if they, too, would stop and take a bird's-eye view of themselves

Children Realize
In the first place the children know too much about it. They know they are being experimented on and consist largely of subject matter and case material. This is never a good thing. It cannot possibly be so. When a mother has to get out a book to see what to do when Bobby says, "I won't," or Betty goes to a movie without permission, then the whole thing becomes a parody. This subject I think needs to be gone into very seriously, intelligently and privately, and let us say, almost sacredly.

Reading good books is a splendid way, yes, the best, I think. And to meet and discuss matters now and then, soberly and seriously, with each other or to get help with a problem that bothers us, or to hear what a qualified speaker has to say, or to seek the aid of a guidance clinic in extreme cases—all these things are helpful and dignified.

But to make a bad out of child study, to talk about it as we would Culbertson's bids, just so we will be considered "in-the-know" when we talk of suppressions and complexes, won't do any one much good.

You seem nearly any two mothers have the same sort of children. It is a case where each one has a figure it all out for herself, that is, as far as she is able. Quietly, though, quiet reading, quiet analysis—without the knowledge of the children—always applying her own commonsense and good judgment to all these will send each of us on our way along the right road. And the cooperation of our husbands!

Sometimes I wonder if children to-day with all this fan-fare, don't look upon themselves as very interesting beetles.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Mona Moran who supports her mother, invalid father, little sister, Kitty, and near-dowry brother, Bud, is determined to marry for wealth and position. She is receptionist for a Wall Street law firm and in the office she meets men of the world to which she aspires.

Mona's brother announces that her childhood sweetheart, Steve Barclay, grandson of the ice and coal dealer, has returned home. Steve disappeared three years earlier and it was rumored he was in prison though Mona never believed this.

She meets him on her way to work one morning. Steve is handsome, well dressed and well-mannered. Mona reluctantly agrees to dine with him that evening.

CHAPTER III

Mona's day in Garretson, Lawton & Amesbury's exclusive office was filled with a sense of important deeds accomplished. It was a world in which success, like correct manners, was taken for granted; where men were warlords with brisk, confident, conquering steps.

Mona met few strugglers inflamed by a glorious ambition that drove them toward ultimate success. These men had achieved, were still achieving. Failure was a word as little to be associated with them as the word poverty.

They came from that world to which Mona aspired—that cool, confident world from which fragrant, attractive women wearing costly furs now and then appeared to wrest their lords from the exactions of affairs to attend tea, a polo game, or shopping tour.

Mona knew that nature had endowed her with as much real beauty as any of these women possessed. Often enough had she seen in eye-lash flicker at her own loveliness, enhanced rather than subdued by her quiet gown. Frequently as she bent her head to announce Mrs. Thayer and So's arrival, she could sense sharp intake of breath as the import of her own beauty struck home.

With callers, both men and women, Mona was aloof, businesslike, and soft-voiced. She was a part of the excellent Garretson, Lawton & Amesbury machinery, ever conscious of her effect as a human being.

These people, obviously possessing breeding, wealth, power, were moved by Mona's attractiveness.

She had heard murmured references to Botticelli, Burne-Jones, and sea green velvet. Other offerings at her throne occasionally were less subtle. "Where did the old man find that beauty, anyway?"

The old man was Mr. Garretson. Though she sat at the reception desk some distance from his sanctum sanctorum, Mona felt that she served him alone. Mr. Garretson had hired her, Mr. Garretson had recommended the raises in salary which had followed at regular intervals.

She sat in the softly lighted, thickly carpeted reception hall, her molten copper hair gleaming softly against paneled walls, her frills at wrist and throat pure and startling against the somber richness of the flat mahogany desk on which her tiny pen, blotter, and pencils, finely sharpened, rested beside a shining French telephone.

It was Mona's duty to interrogate visitors, separate the wheat from the chaff, send some away without offense, delay others, convey this and that message to this and that person with just the correct touch.

There was a switchboard operator within, safe in a frosted glass cage, but she transferred the most difficult of her supplicants to Mona. Mona invariably answered all calls for Mr. Garretson and Mr. Amesbury. Mr. Lawton had unusual independence and frequently he answered his own.

"I am sorry, Mr. Amesbury sees no one without an appointment. I'll see if I can find Mr. Lawton for you. Who is calling, please?" Mr. Garretson is in conference and cannot be disturbed. I'll see that he receives the message. Yes, Mrs. Thayer, Mr. Lawton has a closing at 11. I can get you 15 minutes at 11:30.

That 15 minutes would begin at 12:15, with back and last an hour, topped by luncheon at the Savarin. Mrs. Thayer was a charming widow. "I'll let you know the moment he arrives, Mr. Garretson. No, Mr. Lawton, the Bankers' Club luncheon is Wednesday. Yes, Mr. Amesbury, I'll see that you do not miss your train."

The elevator clicked and the door swung open. The light faded as the door closed again behind its out-going passenger, and the car drummed on its way.

Setting the telephone back in its place, Mona smiled mechanically at the newcomer. Her heart was in a tumult which he could have been pardoned for not sensing, so controlled was her face.

It was Barry Townsend, the wild young man of the firm, nephew of one of their most lucrative clients. Tall, well set up. Coffee brown. Yale football team, 1927. Handsome, humorous.

Further than that Mona did not go in her thoughts. It was true, however, that Townsend was charming, wealthy, eligible, attractive—and attracted! Mona's method in such instances was to reconnoiter, consider and capitulate later—if at all. And when it would be merely to the extent of the most conservative of invitations.

Though Mona had been with the firm for two years she had not laid eyes on Barry until a month ago. It was rumored that he had displeased his uncle who held the family purse strings until Barry became 30. He had dashed away to Mexico—or was it China?—soon after finishing college.

Here he was back again, confident, gay and the despair of that portion of the debutante flat favoring older men. Twenty-eight seemed to many of them the beginning of the senile stage in manhood.

"As I live!" Barry Townsend announced in well simulated surprise. "Portrait of a Red-Haired Lady. Mmm... it is a portrait. No, she starts, she moves—"

Mona said dryly, "Burne-Jones, Botticelli. I've heard all that."

The young man dropped his bantering. "Miss Moran, I braved the elements and the hour ostensibly to ask of you for an advance. Actually it was to ask you to dine with me. Any evening, any hour, any time. Only the sooner, the quicker."

His eyes followed the movements of her hands about her desk straightening a few papers. "I've been for heaven knows how long where there wasn't a soul to talk to except my partner. Of course there were a few other white men but they worked for me. When they weren't cheating me—or trying to—they yessed me. No white women at all."

"Think of it! Never sitting at a table with a woman. Never talking to one or dancing with one. His smile grew boyish. "Have pity on me. Dine with me somewhere and let's go places and do things!" The sincerity in his voice touched Mona but she met it flippantly.

"My mother told me never to trust men who asked me out to dine."

"Does that mean I am never to see you?"

Mona raised demure eyes. "You are getting quite an eye for now."

"A very satisfactory eye for, but old Garretson or Lawton or what you call him may barge out here any minute and I'll have to barge back behind the scenes and ask for cash I don't need."

The telephone chimed. It was Lottie Carr calling. She had a gorgeous invitation for both of them for dinner. Mona just must not refuse.

"I am dated up, Lottie. I'll call you back, though, at lunch time."

The girls conversed noisily for a few moments, Mona punctuating Lottie's wisecracks with "Yes... Well?... I'll see."

Barry, his back carefully turned, during the conversation, sat on the edge of her desk, swinging his cane at imaginary tracings in the carpet.

"If you are dated up tonight, of course that's that," he said reluctantly.

"I—I've made it a rule never to spend the hours after work with people I've met at the office. Firm members, employees or clients. I can't break that rule. I'm sorry."

BE TAKEN—

—AND RECEIVED

(By "Saracen")

It is remarkable that more goals are not scored from corner kicks. The ball travels to the most dangerous spot, or should do so, and yet not once in ten is it sent into the net. This is due to covering of the attackers plus the poor placing of the ball by the kicker, but it always seems to me that scoring opportunities are missed.

One defect by attacking forwards at a corner is that they are inclined to take up their places too close to goal. They should stand ten yards or so out and they should spread out. This makes the covering by defenders more difficult. It also gives the forwards more scope for movement.

A player standing close to goal is more or less helpless unless the ball goes to him. It is then often too late to move outwards to meet it because either an opponent or a colleague is likely to be in the way. On the other hand, if he takes up a place ten yards out in the first place he can either go forward as he sees the ball coming over or shift to right or left.

"TELEGRAPH" ART
SUPPLEMENTVaried Pictures on Saturday

Variety will be the keynote of the Saturday issue of the Telegraph Pictorial Supplement.

Amongst sporting events covered will be the Cner Clark Hockey Cup closing match and the Senior Soccer Shield game, while groups will be given of H.M.S. Tamar's accountants' football team and the University cricket team which won the championship.

The Quarry Bay School Spring Festival will be illustrated, whilst groups taken at dinner to Mr. C.E. Frith and to the matriculation class of Queen's College will also be given, together with a group of those present at the annual meeting of the New Territories Evangelical Society. Pictures of the s. s. Suzanne ashore near Swatow, together with some interesting studies by Mrs. J.W. Platt, will also appear.

or so forward and use his hands and in this way have a big advantage over a forward who can only attempt to score with his head. The ideal spot for the ball to come down is just too far out for the goalkeeper to come out and yet near enough for a quick header to succeed.

USEFUL TRICK.

The other reason why the forwards should stand back is that a header is always more dangerous when a man can run on to the ball. He gets more force behind it than is possible when he is standing still and has to jump straight up for it.

One corner trick is for the "smallest forward to come back to take the place of the centre-half who goes up. This, of course, is only done if the centre-half is a tall man. If he is wise the centre-half will not be in a hurry to advance. He simply stroll forward arriving, say fifteen yards out when the kick is about to be taken. From this place he can watch the flight of the ball and move in any way according to its direction. If he makes his advance stealthily it is quite likely, too, that he will not be properly marked by an opponent.

The reason why corners do not produce more goals is that the attackers have to be accurate with their headers, having to get the ball into a prescribed space whereas the opposition have only to get the ball away from their goal and it does not matter a great deal in which direction they send it. Still it always seems to me that more ought to be made of corner kicks.

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was quiet yesterday. Business done: 750,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—Despite bullish business news, the market eased downward and trading was dull owing to the slump in Grains, which was caused by heavy profit-taking.

JAPANESE DUMPING

Solely on economic grounds, the Government of India has denounced the Trade Convention with Japan, under which that country has hitherto enjoyed most-favoured-nation treatment.
This is a sequel to the dumping of Japanese commodities, principally piece-goods, although all classes of dumped goods will,
of course, be affected by the decision. Japan's depreciated currency and other factors have enabled her to flood the Indian markets with goods at prices which adversely affect India's own industries, and it is purely to protect these industries that the Convention has now been abrogated. This question of Japanese dumping has been much to the fore of late. Lancashire has been complaining loudly of its effects, whilst even here in Hongkong the issue has been raised in the case of the cement industry. The ground on which India has acted could be held to provide justification for the taking of measures to protect the Hongkong cement industry, which has been keenly feeling the effects of Japanese competition at uneconomic prices. The cases, however, are not quite on all fours, inasmuch as Hongkong is, for all intents and purposes, still a free port, whereas India has her own tariff system under which action is easily taken. The question thus arises whether, in view of Hongkong's peculiar position as a distributing centre rather than an actual producer, it would be politic to interfere with its free port status, on which, admittedly, its prosperity has been built up. There is the further aspect that discriminatory tariffs invite retaliation, and it is conceivable that such retaliation might adversely affect the very industries sought to be assisted. Apart from cement, there are other industries in this Colony which would doubtless like protection.
Indeed, indications are not wanting that Hongkong is slowly, but surely, developing an industrial character. Particularly is this noticeable on the mainland.
There are people who believe that Kowloon and its hinterland will eventually become a big industrial centre, especially when the railway link between Canton and Hankow is forged. This is

Roosevelt

No American president in history has occupied quite the position that President Roosevelt occupies to-day. By a unique combination of circumstances he stands in the spot where all of the hopes and fears of the nation converge. The fears are greater than ever before and the hopes are more passionate. Every problem that the country faces —and there are many of them, overwhelming in size and complexity—has been dumped on his doorstep. The responsibility this puts on his shoulders is tremendous. Because the nature and extent of that responsibility are widely realised, Mr.
Roosevelt has begun his term of office with the whole-hearted best wishes of all Americans, regardless of party. This is at once his strength and his weakness. If he succeeds he will succeed greatly; if he fails his failure will be immeasurable.
America has come to realize,
in the hard years of the depression, that the country can drift no longer—because the drift is toward a cataract. America has also come to realise that the programme to remedy the troubles must come from the White House—because experience has shown that it cannot possibly come from anywhere else. To-day as never before, Americans have placed their fortunes, hopes for the future, and confidence in the hands of the President. They have given him, so to speak, a blank cheque and his use of it so far has been admirable.

DON'T BE A DOORMAT

By HELEN ROSE

Most men, and all children are selfish, and it is the greatest mistake for a wife and mother to allow herself to be a doormat to her family. She takes the back seat, and they think she likes it.

Many women are ready to sacrifice themselves entirely to their families. But the time comes when the sacrifice is accepted as a matter of course.

A woman is apt to be deeply wounded when her family is not particularly grateful or appreciative. But she has put herself in the background and let her family have the best of everything. In fact, she has always put herself last, and is deeply hurt when her family leaves her there.

But she shouldn't always be so ready to fetch her husband's shoes and pick up her children's toys.
If she insists upon making these sacrifices, let her make it quite clear that they are favours, not rights.

Her family will think a great deal more of her if she occasionally reminds them what a good wife and mother she is.

Husbands don't really care about unselfish wives. They think they do, but the devoted slave-wife is rarely the star of a man's exaltation.
In time he is apt, like most husbands, to take too much for granted, and he is quite likely to regard his wife's devotion in the same way as he regards an easy chair or a good dinner. They are simply there and he merely benefits by them.

A husband is far more likely to be impressed by a wife who points out to him what a treasure he has.

Unselfish mothers also make selfish children. And when a mother complains of lack of thought and consideration in her children, it is probably because she has never taught them to be considerate or attentive to herself. She has made herself their doormat. And people wipe their feet on doormats automatically.

A little spice of genial unselfishness is very good for husband and children.

This may sound cynical, but every-day experience shows that it is the wife and mother with personality, self-respect and a little gay selfishness that is more adored by her husband and children.

Anyhow, a wife and mother has to make quite enough compulsory sacrifice without looking round to find more. And if anyone is to be waited on, it should be the mother and not the children; if anyone is to fetch and carry it should be the husband, and not the wife.

Of course, in the big things of life a good wife and mother will always be ready to make sacrifices.

But it is in the little things of life that too many women make themselves doormats. They take the uncomfortable chair, and eat the burnt toast, and lug parcels, and get up to ring the bell, and take up family breakfasts, and stay at home to mind the house. And those are the things that the family will allow her to do, without thinking for just so long as she chooses to do it. And they don't love her a bit better for it.

So, for her family's sake, as well as her own, the wife and mother should think before she makes herself the slave of the household.
Later, on she will quite probably upbraid her husband for being selfish, and reproach her children for being unkind and inattentive.
They will resent this, and she will quite fail to see that she has brought it all on herself—that it is her unselfishness that has made them so selfish.

"Oh, Mother won't mind!" is the cruelest epitaph that any family can raise. But Mother has written those words herself, because she has chosen, all unknowing, to be the Family Doormat.

WOMAN'S ANNUAL ORGY

By L. C. MOORE.

Once, in the dim, dark ages when people lived in caves, a cave-wife got a bright idea for filling in a slack afternoon.

She turned out the skull-bone ornaments, the wattle mats and her husband, and gave the place a thorough clean from top to bottom.

The lady in the cave next door saw her, and immediately realised that unless she did the same thing her husband might begin to think she wasn't such a good cave-wife as the cat next door.

So she turned out all her belongings including the man. Once started, the idea spread, and the thorough turn-out became an annual orgy.

Every year, just when we feel happy because the buds in the garden are beginning to burst, and the pipes in the loft have ceased to burst, our wives descend upon us with pails and mops.

How Men Suffer

We make a joke of it, but how we suffer. We can't sit down anywhere because there is nowhere to sit down. Before we can retire to rest we have to shift the bedroom furniture off the bed. We can't drive into the garage until we've moved the dining-room suite out.

And it's all so unnecessary—or should be. Mind you, I don't say it was never necessary. It probably was when the cave-wife started it.

But in these days of modern villas and labour-saving devices—why, do you think that if a man had a house to run he would have to give it a thorough clean once a year? Most definitely not. With his inherent love of system and organisation, he would so arrange his work that every room would automatically be given a complete turn-out once a week.

No dust would be allowed to remain undisturbed for a year; it wouldn't even be allowed to settle.
There would be no accumulation of old shoes, old hats, obsolete lamp bells and so on to shift from the top of the cupboard; they just wouldn't be put there.

As a consequence, the whole place would be kept so tidy and spotless that the weekly clean would be a mere matter of routine, instead of the general and ghastly upheaval that the annual do is.

The more I think about it, the more certain I am that it all goes back to that cave-wife. She started it, and no wife since has had the courage to stop it.

"I like these, ma'am. They're so sheer nobody'd guess you had any stockings on."

The Very Idea!

MOTHERS-IN-LAW

By Ed. ("Had Some") Kelly.

"SPEAKING of mothers-in-law," said he in a hushed voice.

They tell us that the mother-in-law jokes have gone out of date nowadays.

We know that. There's no joke about our mother-in-law.
If there ever was any joke about mother-in-law, we never found out what it was.

The chief comedian—the party was reserved exclusively for him—would come on the stage and say, "Now my mother-in-law—"

Immediately everyone in the house would shriek aloud in an agony of mirth and drown his next words.

The comedian would never persist in trying to make himself heard, in case somebody expressed.

We gather, however, that the lady in question was supposed to be a combination of a crocodile, a sergeant-major with corns, and a Peak taipan, and her chief occupation in life was to stay with her daughter, so that she could make her daughter's husband's life as miserable as possible.

We have known many mothers-in-law, but none of them have been like that. Most of them are up seductive, as bewitching, and as alluring as a stocking advertisement, only more so.

When she visits her daughter and the despoiled husband she brings the latest jazz records, dresses in transparent beach pyjamas, and drinks the husband under the table.

And, generally, the poor decrepit old lady gets on so well with her son-in-law that the daughter is the one who becomes miserable.

Hubby falls for the old lady in a big way, and they whisper in corners when the daughter is not looking, and the party ends up in a row with the husband and mother-in-law arrayed against the daughter.

Mind you, we don't want you to get the idea that our mother-in-law is that.

We would not, under any circumstances, cast any reflections on the old hen's character. She may be an interfering, dodding old fool, sticking her nose into other people's business, and causing misery wherever she goes, but it's not for the likes of us to say so.

We may have our opinions, but we trust we are a gentleman.

FAMOUS TRIALS.

Miss Muffet deposited that every evening she sat on a tuffet in the garden to eat curds and whey and listen to the broadcast from the house next door. On this particular evening the defendant suddenly appeared and said, "Hullo, dearie."
Witness had never before in her life been spoken to by a man.

Here counsel for the defence interposed and said, "Me lud. My ellent is not a man. She is a lady." (Sensation).

The Judge: She doesn't look very ladylike. (Laughter). Is she married?

Counsel: She has a husband, in a manner of speaking. The fact is,
she was married only this morning, and she has since eaten him. It's an old spider's custom.

At this the prosecution withdrew, but the publicity enabled Miss Muffet to go on the stage and she got money from at least two enterprises. One was a furnishing firm, who invented the slogan, "If Miss Muffet had sat on one of our tuffets, nothing would have frightened her away."

The other firm told the world that "Miss Muffet's curds and whey was made with our Essence of Hennot. Try some yourself, and see spiders likewise."

MUSSOLINI'S

Three months' leave in Italy is all that Count Galasso Ciano, the Italian Minister to China, deems it advisable to take at present. He is proceeding to Italy by the Conte Rosso which arrived in port this morning and accompanying him are the Countess Ciano and baby son, Fabrizio.

The Countess Ciano is Signor Mussolini's eldest daughter, and one of the main objects of the trip is to present to Il Duce his first grandson.

Interviewed at the Italian Consulate-General, the Count Ciano declined to discuss political events in China or the Sino-Japanese conflict.

From an economic standpoint, however, he felt that China was making steady progress. So much had yet to be done that the progress might be difficult to discern, but after six years in diplomatic circles in the East, he could see the country changing steadily for the better.

Despite talk of depression, he considered Shanghai to be sound at heart. Nanking, too, was making good progress. A big waterworks scheme was being carried out there and in two or three years' time it would be a very pleasant place in which to live.

Count Ciano is well acquainted with conditions in Shanghai, having spent most of the last two years there. He considers that the relations between foreigners and Chinese are quite friendly and still closer co-operation may be expected in the future.

Questioned concerning the re-establishment of an Italian Consulate in Canton, the Italian Minister said such a recommendation had been made, and he hoped the Government would act on it.

At 11.30 a.m. a reception in honour of the Minister was given on board the Italian warship, Quarto. Among those present were Bishop Valtorta, the Mother Superior of the Italian Convent and Sisters, the Rev. Father Teruzzi, Rignati, and Galbiati. A large number of members of the Italian community also attended.

TIFFIN PARTY.

Commander A. Bianconi, Consul General for Italy was the host at a tiffin in the Peninsula Hotel at 1 p.m. in honour of the Count and Countess Ciano.

Among those present were Bishop Valtorta, the Consul General for the United States, Mr. D. Jenkins and Mrs. Jenkins, Sir Robert and Lady Ho Tung, Capt. Cesarano (Commander of the Quarto), Mr. Hall (Charge d'Affaires for Norway in Peking), Major Augustine Barker, Mr. Edlon Potter K.C., and Miss Potter, Dr. Wu Pak-shin (representing Mayor Liu Chi-wan of Canton), Dr. Shiang Ling-fu (representing Mr. Chow Lu, member of the South Western Political Council and Chancellor of the Sun Yat Sen University), Mr. Lee Tong (representing the chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government), Mr. and Miss Grayburn and Mrs. Ho Shal-lai.

HAPPY VALLEY
SQUATTERSPROBLEM STILL PERSISTS

The presence of squatters in the Wong Nei Chung district is giving rise to a serious problem, according to a statement made by Mr. R. E. Stott, of the Public Works Department, before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning.

Resulting from a police raid under Detective Sub-Inspector Nollath, last night, ten squatters, eight men and two women, were taken into custody, and were charged with occupying Crown lands without permit.

Evidence was taken, after which his Worship discharged one of the women defendants, and imposed a fine of $5 on each of the remainder.

Mr. Stott pointed out that he had warned the squatters to clear off time and again, but on many occasions within two hours of demolition they commenced re-erecting their huts. Even when poles were chopped, they tied them up and utilised them again. The trouble was not only at Seymour Road, but also at the rear of houses in Village Road. Flats there used to rent at $120 each, but owing to the nuisance caused by the presence of the squatters, the rent would not fetch more than $80 now.

The Magistrate suggested burning the demolished material.

Mr. Stott replied that the Sanitary Department had done that two years ago, but found they had done wrong. There was no power for such action.

His Worship next suggested casting the material into the sea, and this course was ordered.

CHARGESTHREE FOREIGNERS
IN COURT

The case in which Francis Raymond and Edward Shuster are charged with obtaining $76 from Jimmy's Kitchen, Wanchai branch, by falsely pretending that 20 American trade dollars which they changed were each worth $3.80 Hongkong currency, were on in point of fact they were worth only a dollar, again came before Mr. Schofield at the Central Court to-day.

Mr. M. K. Lo appeared for Shuster, and the case was adjourned for hearing on April 25, at 2.30 p.m.

The case against Jose Loreda Navarro, who was similarly but separately charged, was also mentioned, the accused on his re-appearance expressing a wish to be present at the trial of the other two defendants.

The Magistrate asked Det. Sgt. Fitches, the prosecuting police officer, if Navarro was going to give evidence, and the officer replied that the police would have to consider the point.

Navarro's case was formally adjourned for a week.

In reply to the Court, Sgt. Fitches said the case against the man Gifford, now under remand, would have to be heard independently, as it did not arise from the same facts.

A British passport issued in June last year to George Henry Gilbert, of Sydney, New South Wales, was picked up in the Wanchai district recently, and can be had on application to the Central Police Station.

The annual dinner of the A. S. C. Cadre of the H. V. D. C. will be held to-night at the Sports Club. Speeches will be made by the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, Colonel L. G. Bird, Major C. M. Mannors, and Mr. C. Champkin.

Cheung Leung Tai, master of a Hongkong junk, appeared before Commander Nowill at the Marine Court to-day, charged with using grappling irons for lifting articles out of the harbour, and with failing to stop when called on to do so by a police officer. Defendant pleaded guilty to both charges, and was fined $5 on the first and $10 on the second.

A fine of $5 was imposed by Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning on a mechanic who assaulted a riksha coolie for no apparent reason. Sergeant Danbrowsky stated that former was riding on a bicycle and when passing the riksha pushed the shafts down sharply. He then turned round, alighted from the vehicle and punched the coolie three times in the chest.

Jean Harlow, the platinum-blond girl, Mae Clarke and Mario Provost are three experienced players taking the title parts in "Three Wise Girls" now being featured at the Queen's. The story is not too strong in cohesion, but it is interesting as seeking to convey the experiences of three girls in a city in which the men for the most part are represented as the most part for a proper safeguarding of morals and inclined willingly to prey on every innocent girl that comes up from the country. "Three Wise Girls" is billed to run until Saturday.

Miss Mildred Dawn, who will appear in the Rose Room of the Peninsula Hotel at the gala night on Easter's Eve, Saturday the 15th instant.

CHINESE IN MEXICO.

ILLEGALLY DEPORTED BY COMMITTEES

New York, Apr. 12.

Referring to the question of Chinese nationals being ordered to evacuate Mexico, the Chinese Minister to Mexico says the trouble is confined to the State of Sinaloa where 300 were illegally deported by committees in recent months.

Last week 15 were forcibly removed from Culiacan to Jalisco.

The Minister has forwarded a protest to the Mexican Foreign Office.—Reuter's Special.

U.S. RESERVE BANK.

RESIGNATION OF
GOVERNOR OF BOARD

New York, Apr. 12.

Mr. Eugene Meyer, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank Board, has resigned.

The resignation was accepted by President Roosevelt ten days ago on the understanding that Mr. Meyer would remain in office until a successor was chosen.

The well-known economist, Mr. Walter W. Stewart, is mentioned as Mr. Meyer's successor.—Reuter.

Stainer's "The Crucifixion" will be rendered by the choir at St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, to-night at 8 p.m.

The Hongkong Benevolent Society acknowledges with grateful thanks the sum of $25 in memory of "Steve" from Mr. and Mrs. C. N. C.

Mr. C. A. da Rosa, who has been acting Consul-General for Portugal, departs for Lisbon on the Conte Rosso to-day, and Mr. P. V. Bolelli, Vice-Consul, will be in charge of the Consulate.

Taking delivery of a new car at 5 o'clock yesterday evening, Mr. Stanley Smith of the New Zealand Perpetual Forests this morning awoke to discover that it had run into the harbour and sunk. It was a Morris Minor and diving operations to recover the vehicle from the bed of the harbour were carried out this morning.

Pleading guilty before Mr. Schofield in the Central Magistracy this morning to the theft of three lbs. of solder from the China Can Company, Davis Street, an employee was fined $30 or one month in default. Detective-Sergeant Kincaid said that until yesterday employees were not searched before leaving the premises, but owing to recent petty larcenies this course was adopted.

In connexion with the local celebration of Children's Day, entries for the Health Contest, tentatively fixed to be closed last night, will be accepted up to Sunday. So far over 120 entries for children at the age of 2 and 12 have been received by members of the organising committee of the Children's Day Celebration at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. and South China Athletic Association. The contest will be opened on Wednesday at the Hop Yit Church by Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotowall.

Before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, Li Tam, the manager of the Hop Hing firm of building contractors, was summoned for not taking sufficient precautions whilst blasting at the Government Quarry at Tai Kok Tsui on March 31. Sergeant Whitcroft said defendant had three agents, but they were not heavy enough, with the result that a piece of rock flew about dangerously, being too high for a proper safeguarding of morals and inclined willingly to prey on every innocent girl that comes up from the country. "Three Wise Girls" is billed to run until Saturday.

HOCKEY SQUABBLE: INCOGS PROTEST

REFUSE MAMAK DECISION

TIFFIN TIME MEETING

CASE BASED ON RULE 22

By "Bully-Off"

Another Mamak hockey protest, this time by the Incognitos!

The words warfare which has raged around the failure of the Incognitos to finish their league programme, the demand for cessation of points from H.M.S. Tamar, the refusal of the committee to permit this and their order for a deciding match between the Incogs and the Radio, has now culminated in the Incognitos lodging a protest against committee's decision reached last night.

THE LETTER.

The offended team met early this afternoon and drafted a letter of protest which will be immediately despatched to the Secretary of the Mamak competition.

Its chief points are:

- (1) Inability to accept the Mamak committee's decision for a deciding championship match as in the Club's opinion Rule 22 of the tournament will not permit of such an order.

(The rule in question states that should the leading teams have an equal number of points, a deciding match or matches shall be played for the championship. The Incognitos argue that this applies only in the case where both teams have tied after playing the same number of matches.)

- (2) The Incognitos are prepared to play the Radio if and when H.M.S. Tamar defeat them.
- (3) The Club denies onus in regard to the non fulfilment of their league fixture with H.M.S. Tamar.

'THE FAIREST COURSE.'

In extension of these arguments the letter adds that as there was no further extension of time for them to play off their fixture with the Tamar the Incogs' committee was of the opinion that two points should be granted to them as originally conceded by the secretary of the Tamar. If, however, it should appear to be unfair to the Tamar to deprive them of both points because through no fault of their own they could not complete their fixtures within the appointed time then in their opinion the fairest course would be to treat, as abandoned, all matches outstanding after April 10, the points being shared by the teams concerned as was done in the case of the Incognitos-St. Andrew's match.

ONUS DENIES.

The Incogs, denying that it was their fault that the match with the Tamar was not played off earlier in the season, state the Tamar never approached them regarding their fixture and it was the secretary of the Incogs who made the first move. They point out that they had only one game outstanding as compared with several unplayed by the Tamar. Attention is also drawn to the fact that the Tamar were prepared to concede both points which rather belied the inference that they consider the Incognitos were to blame for the match not being played.

DECIDING GAME ORDERED

PROTEST AGAINST THE INCOGS: UPHELD

By "Bully-Off"

The Mamak hockey committee last evening upheld the protest put in by H.M.S. Tamar against the awarding of points to the Incognitos in connexion with their league fixture which was not played off in the required time.

The decision of the committee means that a replay for the Mamak championship is now necessary, and, according to present arrangements, the Radio and Incognitos, joint leaders, will meet in the deciding game on Saturday.

UNANIMOUS VOTE.

By a unanimous vote, the committee last night found that fault of the H.M.S. Tamar-Incognitos match being unplayed lay with the latter club. They found that the civilians could have played the

Y.M.C.A. Billiards Championship

PYMM BEATS YOUNG EASILY

Compiling the top break of the evening of 46, as well as runs of 25, 24, 22, and 20, J. Pym won the Y.M.C.A. Billiards Championship last night comfortably beating J. Young by 350 points to 202.

Young, who played well below form, had a 23 as his best visit to the table. The consistency of Pym was a feature of his play.

SOLDIERS' CLUB BILLIARDS

TOURNAMENT STARTING IN MAY

It is proposed to make a start in the above competition the first week in May.

The competition is open to the following:—Each Company/Headquarter Wing British Infantry, each Battery R. A. Royal Engineers, R.A.M.C., R.A.S.C., R.A.P.C., R.A.O.C., H.K.V.D., Police, Sanitary Corps, Warlike Ship R.N., and R. N. Yard Police.

Entries together with entrance fee of $5.00 should be submitted to Lieut. G. H. King, Hon. Secy. Billiards Committee, Hongkong Area Sports Board, at Shamshui-po Camp, by Wednesday next. Teams consist of eight players and games are of 200 points up, the result being determined on aggregate points scored.

R.A.O.B. WIN.

In a friendly billiards match played at the R.A.O.B. Club on Tuesday night the hosts easily beat a team of Chief Petty Officers and Petty Officers from H.M.S. Wild Swan by 600 points to 370, the civilian players winning on all tables.

The best match of the evening was that between R. E. Jefferies of the match earlier in that season if desired, and therefore they refused to award points to the Incognitos because the Tamar had been unable to play the game last Sunday. Saturday's replay match will take place on the Marina ground at 4.30, and the winners will play the Rest of the League on the U.S.R.C. enclosure on Saturday week.

NO. 5 CLUB DE RECREIO.

Here we have the youngest club in Kowloon, and the most ambitious. Furthermore there is proved and latent talent in abundance with which the Recreio may well realise their ambitions.

The Portuguese made their bow in the Hongkong Lawn Bowls League as recently as in 1927, but it only took them the first season to prove their worth, the reserves carrying off the second division championship.

Last year the Club lifted the Spey Royal Cup and the seniors finished runners-up to Craighover in the first division.

And if this logical sequence is maintained it looks fairly likely that the club's ambition to top the senior league is to be realised this summer.

HOW PLAYERS FEEL.

Certainly the players feel that way about it. This is how they are expressing it: "Provided nothing unforeseen happens it is expected that the regular players of last year will turn out again this season. The prospects therefore look rosy, considering the fact that the club were runners-up in last year's league with a difference of but three points from the C.C.C., the champions.

An official of the club further reports that those splendid bowlers, R. F. Luz, ex-singles champion of the Colony, and his colleague C. E. Marques, will probably have the same rinks which gave such excellent support last summer, while new blood may be introduced in C. G. Silva's rink.

This rink is expected to yield much better results than in the past, and everything points to the Recreio first string being one of the best balanced, and strongest sides in the Colony.

CUP TO DEFEND.

The second division team are also very keen and their prospects of reaching the top appear to be much brighter than heretofore. They will have the advantage of new talent, guided by their first division colleagues.

Beyond the league, the Recreio have the Spey Royal Cup on their hands and it is their intention to see that it remains there. In addition they will be taking part in the International Shield tournament which has been presented by Mr. L. A. Gutierrez.

So far as equipment and facilities are concerned the Recreio are in an extremely happy position. Regarded by all players as one of the best in the Colony, the green this year shows an even improved condition. It enjoys new grass and a few bumps which were discernible a year ago, have been obliterated to leave the green in a first rate playing state.

A repetition during the week-end of the above incident will go a long way towards putting Chelsea out of the relegation zone.

IN MILITARY BOXING TOURNEY

The South Wales Borderers won the military boxing tournament at Murray Barracks last night, when they scored a total of nine victories against the Lincolns' seven.

The Borderers easily captured the Inter-Unit competition, winning six of the eight bouts, but the Lincolns were successful in the Novices, obtaining five of the eight verdicts.

NOVICES' COMPETITION.

Middleweight.—L/C Petchy (Lincolns) beat Pte. Boulton (Borderers) on points.

POOR STANDARD OF FOOTBALL

Typical mid-week football—lethargic, disjointed and uninteresting—characterised the meeting of the Club and Police in a first division encounter yesterday, when the Club earned two points as a result of a snap goal after being completely on the defensive for two thirds of the game.

E. Strange made the winning goal possible, beating two or three opponents before giving Williams a square pass a few yards from goal which the centre-forward could not miss.

Subsequently the Club should have increased their lead, but S. Strange ballooned over the top from a penalty.

POLICE MEDICINE.

The Police had a taste of the medicine given the Recreio when they met last Saturday. They should never have lost on the run of the play. Only the spilling work of Railton and the rest of

Williams, who scored the Club's goal by which they beat the Police in a league match yesterday.

The Club defence kept the Police out in the early stages of the game, and it was not until they had been put in arrears that the Police lost a grip on the game.

E. Strange and Williams were the pick of the Club attack, whilst Hynde shone in the half back line and Railton defended splendidly. The Police lacked thorough understanding, and finished poorly. T. Ellis was a good worker up forward, but the rest were not mediocre.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

The early ambition of Spencer Tracy was to become a great surgeon, but instead, more by force of circumstances than anything else, he became an actor. It was while he was attending Marquette University that a series of events changed the trend of his plans. There he was induced to portray a role in a college play and he enjoyed it so much that he decided to leave Marquette and enter the American Academy of Dramatic Art where he laid the foundation for his career on the stage and screen. In "Me and My Gal", Tracy plays the role of an imperturbable young detective who finds romance with a girl cashier in a restaurant, a love affair that leads him to the trail of a murderer on whose head there is a reward of $10,000. It is said to be a gripping drama of life in New York, tinged with rich comedy situations. The picture was directed by Raoul Walsh who directed "Wild Girl", Miss Bennett's recent success, "The Yellow Ticket" and "The Cuck Eyed World".

"An You Desire Me"
Greta Garbo in an exotic silver and black harlequin costume presents a vivid portrayal as the heroine of the Pifandello great play, "An You Desire Me." The screen version of this stage hit opens on Saturday at the Queen's Theatre. "An You Desire Me" affords Miss Garbo a dual character, as it were, later changing her personality and mood to fit the demure and fragile creature in whose memory she projects her life. Laden with metaphysics and psychology, it is a story of regeneration done in a cleverly different manner. Indeed, the story is so unusually appealing in a unique treatment, that it holds the interest of a genuine life drama. Miss Garbo, if it needs be said, in an unusual, magnificent, her every inflection, slightest gesture, adds potency to the role in which she so ably submerged herself. Miss Garbo's talents are entirely individual and, in the opinion of this reviewer, the most artistic screen has produced since its inception. An Zara, the café entertainer who masquerades as the winning wife of Count Bruno, distracted war veteran, Miss Garbo eclipses her greatest triumphs. While not as completely sympathetic as some of her previous parts, the Pifandello role offers her the widest latitude in emotionalism she has ever played. George Fitzmaurice, who directed Miss Garbo in "Mata Hari," also directed "An You Desire Me," from Gene Markey's adaptation of the stage hit. Melvyn Douglas, one of the screen's newest romantic sensations, plays opposite the glamorous star, enacting the role of the Italian nobleman who accepts the woman with a past as the wife who was torn from him in the devastation of warfare. Erich Von Stroheim provides sufficient menace as Zara's persecutor, Salter. The remainder of the excellent cast includes Hedda Hopper, Rafaela Ottiano, Warburton Gable, Albert Conti, William Riechardt and Roland Varno. "Say It with Music"

"Robbers' Roost"
Librarians say that Zane Grey's novels are more in demand than any other books on their shelves. Publishers, however, reveal the even more interesting fact that during the past fifteen years, Grey's works have outsold all other books with the exception of the Bible. One of his most successful stories, which was serialized in a national weekly before its publication in book form, is "Robbers' Roost", a realistic tale of cattle rustlers in Arizona. Fox films executives recognized the volume as an ideal vehicle for George O'Brien, who holds the distinction of being the most popular of all Western screen actors. The picture version of this thrilling novel is now showing at the King's Theatre.

"Three Wise Girls"
It's a wise girl who knows her man—and it's a wiser girl who knows how to get her man and keep him. But, those three girls, Mae Clarke, Jean Harlow and Marie Prevost, in "Three Wise Girls," the Columbia film now showing at the Queen's Theatre, are said to be the most knowing of their species—wise in wisecracks, wise to wiseguys and possessed of a wisdom of their own. Others, who contribute their talents to this sophisticated comedy drama, are Natalie Moorhead, Lucy Beaumont, Katherine Clara Ward and Armand Kaliz. "Three Wise Girls" was adapted from the story, "Blonde Baby," William Wendling directed.

NORWEGIAN FREIGHTER LOST

POLICE RESCUES

Heavy mist and strong current setting towards the shore, are believed to be responsible for the sinking of the Norwegian steamer, Fjorden, which struck Cheung Chau Rock at 6.45 p.m. last night while on her way to Hongkong with a cargo of 43,000 piculs of rice.

The first authentic news of the wreck was provided when the No. 4 police launch, the first to reach Cheung Chau after the call for assistance had gone out, returned to the police pier at Kowloon.

It was loaded down to the plimsoll with 62 Chinese and five European survivors, who had been rescued from lifeboats and junks.

The European officers were seated in the mess-room of the launch. The captain was wearing a uniform borrowed from one of the police officers, while the others were clad in dishevelled overalls and borrowed clothing.

Interviewed immediately after the arrival of the launch at the police pier, Capt. Ormestad told the story of the wreck.

Just as darkness was settling down the ship ran into a mist on the East side of Cheung Chau. She had not proceeded far when there was a splintering crash forward, and she came to a dead stop.

As the Fjorden struck, she heeled over hard to port. Water came pouring into the engine room and No. 1 hold.

The chief and second engineers escaped in the nick of time.

Passengers' Panic.
Among the passengers all was panic and confusion. They rushed wildly hither and thither trying to cram into lifeboats.

It was fortunate that two Aberdeen junks were fishing in the vicinity. Immediately they saw that the Norwegian vessel was in distress they hastened across to the assistance of the crew. The Captain and Chief Engineer remained aboard the stricken vessel until almost the last minute.

Small lifeboats hurried the crew across to the two junks which, however, left before the European officers had cleared the ship.

At 7.15 p.m. it was evident that the Fjorden's fate was sealed and she began to go down bow first.

At 7.30 p.m. she took her final plunge.

There was no time for any personal effects to be saved. Captain, Officers, crew and passengers lost everything they possessed.

Asked what he considered was the cause of the wreck, Capt. Ormestad said the poor visibility combined with a strong current setting shorewards had undoubtedly been powerful contributing factors.

The Rescue.

Immediately the ship struck wireless messages were sent out for assistance. The tugs, Edith, Kau Sing and Henry Kenwick were immediately commissioned, but before they could make a move No. 4 Police Launch was steaming at 18 knots from her Mita Bay patrol to answer the S.O.S. call.

She arrived first on the scene and immediately set about the rescue work. The dingy with the five Europeans was found drifting aimlessly, waterlogged and half submerged. The occupants were taken off and given dry clothes.

The passengers and crew who were taken off the two fishing junks were transferred to the police launch.

Two Still Missing.

Only two remain unaccounted for, but it is almost certain that they were picked up by a sloop. Late reports state that they left the wreck in a small dinghy which capsized and were picked up.

It was nearly 12.30 a.m. this morning when No. 4 Police Launch arrived back with the rescued men. All were immediately taken in hand by the Norwegian vessel's agent. The passengers and crew were taken to Chinese hotels in Yau-mai while the officers were suitably accommodated elsewhere.

The Fjorden was a regular caller at Hongkong, being employed on the run between Bangkok and the Colony.

Ship's History.

The vessel was a steel screw steamer of 1,925 tons nett. She has had a most interesting career since she was launched at the Schiffs. s.v. Shipbuilding Yards in Germany. Her original names were the Rielgraf, Blumberg, and Rudolph, respectively, but after the outbreak of the Great War, she was seized by the United States, converted into a Coastal Defence vessel, and renamed the Beaufort. After the Great War she was decommissioned and sold to her present owners, the D/S A/S Fjorden, of Bergen, Norway.

The ship was constructed upon naval lines, and was one of the first, other than naval vessels, to have a cruiser stern.

European Officers.

The European officers were Captain Ormestad, Oswald Bokke, Chief Engineer, Olaf Fulslov, Second Engineer, Wilgot Johansen, Chief Officer and Yngolf Vaag.

If You Saw Inside Yourself

What would you find?—Would you find your food tract in a clean and healthy condition? Or would you find it congested and unhealthy?

If the latter were the case you could not expect to feel well and happy. Any accumulation which is allowed to go on in your food tract militates against your well-being in many ways. The digestive system reacts to the congestion, resulting in poor digestion, flatulence, fullness after meals, loss of appetite, liverishness and sometimes severe bilious attacks. Accumulated waste matter also contaminates the blood stream, causing loss of energy, making you liable to colds, headaches, dizziness. And sometimes the impurities lodge under the skin causing pimples or boils. To keep fit and happy you must avoid constipation by the use of Pinkettes. This splendid all-vegetable laxative is the nearest approach to nature you can get. Pinkettes, Liver and Laxative Perfection. Keep you clean inside. Take a dose or two and note how much happier you feel. All chemists can supply you with Pinkettes.

MEMORIAL SERVICE TO SIR CLAUD SEVERN.

REV. G. T. WALDEGRAVE'S STIRRING TRIBUTE

"No-one could be so consistently happy as Sir Claud Severn and so radiate happiness, unless the true joy of God possessed him. His sympathy and happiness, joy and love; and now he has passed on into the presence of God, into the fullness of joy."

These words were feelingly spoken by the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave, Chaplain to the Missions to Seamen, in his address at the memorial service to Sir Claud Severn, formerly Colonial Secretary of Hongkong, held in St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon.

The Bishop of Victoria, Rt. Rev. Ronald Hall, Rev. N. V. Halward and Rev. A. D. Stewart participated in the service, which was of a simple but impressive nature. Two hymns and Psalm 23 were sung, and the Lesson was taken from the Revelation of St. John. The Cathedral choir, with Mr. F. Mason at the organ, attended.

Governor Present.
H.E. the Governor, Sir William Peel, accompanied by Capt. Walter, A.D.C., and H.E. the G.O.C., Major-General O. C. Barrett, were present, and among other officials present were, Mr. Justice and Mrs. J. R. Wood, Hon. W. T. and Mrs. Southern, Hon. Mr. C. G. and Mrs. Alabaster, Hon. Mr. E. D. C. and Mrs. Wolfe, Hon. Mr. A. E. Wood, Hon. Sir Henry and Lady Pollock, Hon. Sir Shu-sun Chow, Mr. Justice R. E. Lindsell, Hon. Dr. R. H. and Mrs. Kotewall, Hon. Dr. S. W. Tso, Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Mr. W. Schofield, Mr. N. L. Smith.

The Address.

The Rev. G. T. Waldegrave said:
"In the various accounts of our Lord's words and actions I often think that there is one thing missing, a description of the impression taken away by a stranger after a single heart to heart talk with him. I am quite sure that that man would say that the Master was especially interested in his case, and most sympathetic. In later years he would add 'He was a great friend of mine and it was a very happy experience to be with him.'"

"I do not know at what period in his life Sir Claud Severn heard the call of Christ and decided to throw himself so far as he was able into active participation in work under the Cross, but he surely followed the example of Him who called Himself the Son of Man in showing genuine interest in and sympathy with all around him: so much so that we here, who knew him, the representatives of I suppose every branch and activity of the life in this Colony felt that we could individually claim him as a personal friend, who in conversation made us sure that, we alone, were the very people he wanted to see just then, and that our business was all that really mattered."

Warmhearted Interest.
"Nor was this warmhearted interest restricted to those of his own age and outlook. Who can forget the tremendous enthusiasm among the students of the University when he received his Honorary Degree? And those present can have other than the happiest memories of the Wolf Cub Rally at Tanderagee when he entertained and amused his younger brethren. Any gathering was the merrier for his presence, for he did not believe in silent sympathy only. His aim would seem to have been to drive away the dull aches of life with the medicine of a merry heart. Christ, at the time when his disciples were beset

BOUND FOR AKYAB.

CAPTAIN BERTRAM LEAVES ALOOF STAR

Aloof Star (F.M.S.), Apr. 12: Capt. Bertram, the German aviator, arrived here yesterday afternoon and departed this morning for Akyab. He is flying from Sourabaya (April 11) to Berlin where he hopes to arrive on April 16.

This flight is a continuation of the one started in Australia last December but which was interrupted when Bertram crashed at Sourabaya with a stowaway on board.—Reuter.

with worry and anxious bewilderment spoke to them of joy, a joy that no man could take from them. No one could be so consistently happy as Sir Claud Severn and so radiate happiness, unless the true joy of God possessed him. Happiness is given us to pass on, and most of us here know how successful he was in doing that. "Sympathy and happiness, joy and love—and now he has passed on into the presence of God into the fullness of joy and a peace which passes all understanding."

The Promised Peace.

"I do not know what ideas you may have of that promised peace in the great Hereafter, but for me it does not mean the crossing of tired hands, and endless rest of inactivity. Surely to promise a sufferer mere freedom from pain is a negative sort of hope to offer, for the real joy would be to be able to do things as other folk, without let or hindrance. So too for active people such as Sir Claud was, such a future would hardly seem a heaven. We could never think of him resting out in retirement. We knew that he would throw himself wholeheartedly into the life of those amongst whom he settled, though 3—the hamlet church must take the place of this Cathedral, 2—parochial politics supplant the greater affairs of State, and inter-tribe matches be superseded by 1—village-green rivalries."

"It is possible for the busiest of men on earth to be full of the Peace of Heaven, the peace that comes from the knowledge of pardon, the peace that brings with it power, for the Peace of God has its place on earth just as much as in the world to come. No loving happy nature can be truly such without that peace, and as this life is but an image of the heavenly, love and joy with the attendant sister peace that doth dwell on this earth but in the presence of God they are transcendently glorified, and I am sure that those who have passed beyond the veil are not spending their time of waiting in silent inactivity. Christ has need of them and has some work for them to do of greater power and value than anything he bade them do for him amongst us."

Sympathies Expressed.
"There is no need to grieve for him for whose life we now thank God. He has left behind him memories of friendship and happiness, of warmheartedness, enthusiasm and generosity and he has been called to higher service in the presence of his Lord whom he tried to serve in so joyous a manner on earth."

"But he has been called away just at a time when the help of husband and father would seem to be most needed. To the gracious lady who shared the closing years of his life and to their children we would offer our heartfelt sympathy, knowing that their actual bereavement loss is far greater than any sense of personal loss that we may feel."

KARLOFF IN THE MUMMY

DOCTOR KIDNAPPED

AMERICAN MISSIONARY
NEAR MUKDEN

Tokyo, Apr. 12.
Messages from Mukden declare that Dr. Niels Nielson, an American citizen from Minneapolis and Special.

a medical missionary for the Danish Lutheran Mission at Hsin-yong, 110 miles south of Mukden, has been kidnapped by Chinese brigands.

The affair occurred yesterday, according to a telegram received by the American Consulate to-day from Dr. Nielson's wife. She gives no further details.—Reuters's Special.

STATE AID FOR JOBLESS

ASSUMING FULL RESPONSIBILITY

London, Apr. 11.
The Minister of Health, Sir
Hilton Young, announced in the House of Commons that before the end of this session, the Government would introduce a bill dealing on a national basis with the problem of assistance for those who were in need of assistance, including those who had been insured against unemployment, but who were no longer so insured.

Stating that he could not reveal the contents of the Bill, he indicated its broad outlines.

The essence of the problem was that they had to provide for large numbers seeking work but unable to find it and who were faced with the deteriorating effects of idleness.

As far as possible, it would be the primary purpose of the Bill to make a close connection between the work of giving help and the work of promoting the physical and mental welfare of the unemployed by training, occupation and recreation.

Hilton Young, central Government in relation to assistance from public funds, whether of the local authorities or the funds of the Exchequer.

One of the bases of this redistribution of responsibility between the local authority and the central Government would be that the central Government would accept responsibility, both administrative and financial, for assisting all able-bodied unemployed who needed assistance.

The Government adopted an amendment to a clause motion, accepting responsibility for assistance to all able-bodied unemployed under sixty-five years old with such readjustments in the financial relations between the Exchequer and the local authorities as is reasonable, having regard to the necessities of the distressed areas.—British Wireless.

FOOCHOW NOTES

REPORTED CAPTURE OF TINGCHOW

Foochow, Apr. 6.
Rumour has it that Tingchow has been taken by the Nineteenth Army. If this is true, it is good news, as Tingchow has been the Headquarters of the Reds in Western Fukien for four years. One hopes also that the Government will have some constructive plan for solving the agrarian and other problems which are at the back of the Red peril.

The Ching Ming Festival has been observed in and around Foochow with greater enthusiasm than ever, and the brilliantly fine weather has been in keeping with the date.

Yesterday a large group of friends assembled at the Jetty to say farewell to Miss C. J. Lambert, who is going home on furlough.
Miss Lambert has been for forty years service in Foochow, and has laid the whole community under a great debt. She has been especially associated with the C.M.S. Girls' School, and indeed it is unlikely that that school would be what it is now but for her energy, devotion, and wisdom.
All her friends hope for her speedy recovery of full health and strength and an early return to the field.—Our Own Correspondent.
